Dark Horse's velocity force

DARK Horse Comics' current expansion is diversifying; from April the Wisconsin-based company has added a number of new titles to its imprints.

Star Wars galaxy

● Star Wars: Jabba the Hutt is a 32-page one-shot by Jim Woodring and Art Wetherell and tells the story of Han Solo's arch-enemy's confrontation with the galactic negotiator, Garr Suppoon. The $2.50 comic ships on April 4.

● Star Wars: Droids is a new ongoing monthly following the exploits of Artoo-Detoo and See-Threepio. The series is written by Ryder Windham with artwork by Ian (RoboHunter) Gibson. The first issue ships on April 11 and retails for $2.50.

● Star Wars: River of Chaos is a four-issue series by the reunited Power Pack creators Louise Simonson, June Brigman and inker Roy Richardson.

The story follows Princess Leia's time on the planet M'Haeli, suspected by agents of the Empire to be the location of a rebel outpost. But the Empire is unaware of the rebel's prime asset: Leia's presence.

The first issue ships June 6, and is priced at $2.50.

Manga highlights

Domu: A Child's Dream is a three-issue 80-page series by Akira creator Katsuhiro Otomo.

The series focuses on the relationship between an old man with extra-sensory powers and a young girl, also with extraordinary powers, who intends to challenge his position.

The first issue retails for $5.95 and ships on March 21.

● The Legend of Mother Sarah is an eight-issue series, written by Otomo and illustrated by Takumi Nagayasu, about the power of hope on a poisoned Earth and a woman's search for her children. The first issue is scheduled to ship in May and retails for $2.50.

● Gunsmith Cats is a 10-issue series about Rally and Mini-May, two heavily armed bounty-hunting women in downtown Chicago.

Written and illustrated by Kenichi Sonoda, the 48-page series retails for $2.95 and the first issue ships on April 11.

● While not strictly a manga title, Godzilla features collected US creators' takes on legends about the Japanese folk hero.

A 12-issue series written by Randy Stradley begins in June after issue 0, which collects the Stradley story in Dark Horse Comics with bridging artwork.

The series will be illustrated by Bobby Rubio, Brian Suchy and Brian Garvey, and will retail for $2.50. Issue 0 ships on May 30.

Dark Horse Heroes

● Agents of Law is a new ongoing series tied into Dark Horse's Comics' Greatest World revamp. Named Dark Horse Heroes, the new imprint will be based on a core of five titles — four existing comics and the new Agents of Law.

Written by Keith Giffen and Lovern Kindzierski, Agents of Law tells of the arrival in Golden City of a new kind of hero, Law, and the agents he recruits to maintain order throughout the city.

Dan Lawlis and Ian Akin provide the artwork for the March 14-shipping first issue.

● A new series for Ghost, and relaunches for Barb Wire, X and Motorhead are also scheduled as Dark Horse Heroes titles.

In addition, there is a Mecha Special planned for May 23, which will establish the Dark Horse heroes in their new environment.

Licensed products

● Indiana Jones and the Spear of Destiny is a new four-part Indy adventure by Elaine Lee and Will Simpson, fresh from their critically-acclaimed Vamps mini-series for DC's Vertigo imprint.

Set in 1945, it features Indiana and his father, Dr Henry Jones, in a story based in Ireland. The two intrepid adventurers are searching for the spear reputed to have pierced Christ's side, but discover it has fallen into the hands of the Nazis. The first issue ships in June and retails for $2.50.

● Scheduled to ship on April 18 is a Bacchus Color Special one-shot by creator Eddie Campbell and artist Teddy Kristiansen.

The 32-page fully-painted comic will retail for $2.95.

New readers: begin here

Comics International is a monthly industry newspaper devoted to the comics medium. As such, it provides details of forthcoming UK and US comics and related items, together with reviews and commentary on current titles.

Certain products mentioned are not available through regular news agent outlets, but only from the 'direct sale' comics specialist retailers and mail order companies. Details of specialist outlets are advertised throughout the magazine, and a listing of the major specialists in Britain is given in our Retail Index and Mail Order Index sections.

Shipping dates mentioned for North American titles are the dates copies leave their printers to be air-freighted to distributors for direct sale outlets approximately one week later. These dates and titles do not relate to on-sale dates or titles for news agent copies.*

The Marvel and DC titles on news trade distribution are on sale in the UK approximately two to three months after the air-freighted copies can be bought through specialist shops and mail order companies dealing with 'advance imports'. Because of the additional shipping costs incurred, these advance copies are sold at a higher price than the UK cover price.

Most reputable mail order dealers bear a CoBRA seal on their advertisements. For full details concerning advertisers displaying this Mail Order Protection seal, see page 98.

PETER Milligan is the writer for Vertigo's adaptation of the new Tank Girl film. The artwork for the $5.95 March-shipping one-shot is by newcomer Andy Pritchett, with painted cover art by John Bolton. The following month, the new Tank Girl four-issue series The Odyssey begins. It is written by Pete Milligan and drawn by Tank Girl co-creator Jamie Hewlett, and follows the antisocial heroine around the world as she attempts to save the soul of her boyfriend, Booga the Kangaroo. The first issue ships on April 18, and retails for $2.25.

Marvel tests market with minis

IN the wake of Marvel's cancellations only a limited number of new series are scheduled:

● Nocturne (see below) is a new mystery series set in London and created by the European team of Dan (Death's Head) Abnett, Spain's Joe Fonteriz and John Stokes, who co-created the lead strip Black Knight for the Hulk Weekly. Nocturne's first issue ships on May 23 and retails for $1.50.

● Marvel is to launch its new line of Super Size Specials in May with Spider-Man Super Size Special 1. The new $3.95 flipbook format annuals will feature two stories with different characters.

● X-Men: Prime by Scott Lobdell, Fabian Nicieza and Bryan Hitch is a one-shot special bridging the recent After Xavier: Age of Apocalypse storyline to the original X-Men continuity. Four characters from the alternative storyline will also be reintroduced in X-Men: Prime.

Retailing for $3.95, this continuity linking issue ships on May 2.

● In May, The Ultimate Collection series begins with deluxe reprints of each of the four parts of the X-Men/After X storyline in its own 96-page bookshelf edition. With etched gold-embossed covers, each self-contained section will retail for $8.95 and ship throughout May.

● Captain Britain Classics is a seven-issue mini-series which will reprint early Captain Britain adventures by Dave Thorpe, Alan Davis and Alan Moore.

The first 48-page issue with glossy interiors will ship on May 16, and retail for $2.50 (see feature on page 5). Ironically, with the news of this series, Marvel also announced that Captain Britain, a character who has played a big role in artist Alan Davis's career, is to guest-star in The ClanDestine 10, the second issue after Davis's departure.

● Abraham Stone is a two-issue 48-page series by Joe Kubert (reprinting the Malibu/Platinum graphic novel). It tells the story of a young man living alone in Hollywood around the turn of the century. The first issue retails for $6.95 and ships on May 9.

From May to July, Marvel's new imprints (Spider-Man, X-Men, Universe, General Entertainment and Edge) will be heavily-promoted.

Also in May, the real identity of Spider-Man will be revealed, leading to June's relaunch of the Spider-family of titles, including Spider-Man: The Missing Years.

In July, Marvel Edge launches as Marvel Edge Unlimited, the line will feature heroes such as The Hulk, Ghost Rider, Daredevil, Punisher, Druid and Doctor Strange.

IN BRIEF

WonderCon 1995

THE directors of WonderCon '95, the annual convention of Comic Book Arts will take place from April 21 to 23 at the Oakland Convention Centre in California.

"Every year, WonderCon gets bigger and better," said Joe Field, the director of advertising and promotions for the event.

Last year, WonderCon's 50,000 square feet of display space housed over 200 professional creators, movies and video games, Japanese animators and a benefit auction of original comic art. The convention was attended by 8,000 people and this year, the organisers are hoping for an even bigger turn-out — thanks to the efforts of Rose Anne Raphael Marketing Communications, a public relations company that hopes to establish WonderCon as one of the biggest events of its kind in the US convention calendar.

New Badrock series

FRESH from his six-issue mini-series, Rob Liefeld's hulking member of Youngblood, Badrock, is to feature in his own ongoing monthly series.

Badrock 1 is published in three different cover variations. All three covers are pencilled by Liefeld with different inkers: 1A features Todd McFarlane inks; 1B Stephen Platt's and 1C Dan Fraga's.

The first issue is plotted and pencilled by Liefeld, with a script by Eric Stephenson. It will retail for only $1.75.

Lim's Hawkman

RON Lim, one of Marvel's most prolific artists (he's currently pencilling four titles for the company) is to do his first artwork for DC comics, in April.

Lim has drawn a Hawkman fill-in issue, allowing regular artist Steve Lieber a break, and is to take over as cover artist from issue 22.

Lim is also scheduled to draw fill-ins for The Flash and for Green Lantern, with long-time Silver Surfer associate Ron Marz.

New Viz manga

STRIKER: Secret of the Berserker is a new four-issue series from Viz Communications.

A sequel to the 1992 series, Striker, the new title follows the Striker team's adventures as it confronts a monstrous robot unearthed by British archaeologists.

The story is by Hiroshi Takashige and the series is illustrated by Ryoji Minagawa. The first issue retails for $2.75 and ships on April 18.

Archie's charity

ARCHIE Andrews, the ever-youthful comics character from Riverdale High, has been appointed this year's official ambassador for United Cerebral Palsy Associations, which is estimated to be the second largest health care organisation in the US.

Cynder debuts

A NEW Californian comics company, Immortelle Studios, has signalled the publication of its first book.

Cynder is written and created by David Hernandez, with art by Michael Hernandez and a painted cover by Linda Hernandez. The first issue also features a centrefold pullout by Rob Liefeld.

David Hernadez said of his creation, "Cynder is not just a trend hopper, she's a character you can really identify with who overcomes tremendous hardships and who acquires powers that she uses to wipe out various criminal elements."

Erotic NBM

ALTHOUGH it is unlikely to pass UK customs NBM — under its Amerotica imprint — is to ship Skin Tight Orbit, a collection of erotic SF tales by Elaine (Vamps) Lee.

Included are stories illustrated by Michael Kaluta, Mary Wilshire, Will Simpson and Phil Winslade.

Retailing for $9.95, the 52-page full-colour bookshelf edition also comes in a $45 clothbound edition signed by all the creators and limited to 500 copies.

New returns policy

CAPITAL City Distribution has agreed with Marvel and DC to offer its international customers an improved returns policy.

All eligible product published by Marvel and DC only can be returned to Capital by a signed International Returns Affidavit.

Each return advisory note will include a list of codes. These codes will indicate how the product should be dealt with. Retailers will be expected to return either the full item, the cover or an affidavit detailing titles.

New Dragon mini

ERIK Larsen's Savage Dragon is spotlighted in a three-issue series by Jason Pearson and Karl Story. The first issue of The Dragon: Blood and Guts is scheduled to ship in April, when it will retail for $2.50.

The return of the classic Captain Britain

CAPTAIN Britain, founder member of the British superhero team Excalibur, is to have his early adventures reprinted by Marvel Comics, starting in May.

The Captain, born Brian Braddock but now called Britannic, was created by a consortium led by Stan Lee in 1976. The title was originally intended to boost Marvel's share of the UK market.

During the Seventies, British weekly comics sold better than their US monthly counterparts. Producing low-cost reprints, Marvel found it could increase its turnover , through weekly publishing and the previously untapped British advertisers.

The job of scripting Captain Britain's original adventures was given to Chris Claremont, who now looks back affectionately on it, saying: "They asked me to do Captain Britain because I was born in England. I was less than a year old when my family returned to the States." He continued, "They asked Herb Trimpe to draw the thing because he was living in Cornwall at the time."

During Claremont's 10-issue stint, he introduced readers to characters who would play an important part in the future of Excalibur, as well as the Captain's own adventures. They were Merlin, Roma, Courtney Ross, Vixen, and a young girl called Betsy Braddock, who later assumed the Captain Britain persona and is now the X-Men's Psylocke.

After the original creative team left a number of people took over control of the Captain's destiny. Larry Lieber — Stan Lee's brother — handled some scripts, as did Jim Lawrence and Gary Friedrich. Artwork was by John Buscema, Ron Wilson and Pablo Marcus, but after 39 weeks, Captain Britain Weekly was cancelled. Loose ends were tied up in Super Spider-Man Weekly. Outside of a two-issue team-up with Spider-Man by Chris Claremont and John Byrne in Marvel Team-Up 65 and 66, it was another five years before the character reappeared.

New revolutions

When Dez Skinn took over the helm at Marvel UK, he introduced sweeping changes to the titles and bringing in established British creators to write new stories about existing Marvel characters.

Captain Britain was reintroduced as a supporting character in Hulk Comic, and became involved with the Black Knight in a battle in a mystical dimension called Otherworld. Skinn said of Captain Britain's return: "Captain Britain's origins were grounded in Arthurian legend, and it seemed obvious to make Braddock a supporting character in a strip rooted deep in Cornwall and Merlin's natural home, Otherworld."

Eighteen months elapsed between Britain's last appearance in Hulk Comic and his auspicious debut with a new costume and creative team in Marvel Superheroes 377.

Dave Thorpe, Alan Davis and Paul Neary began his new adventures on an alternative Earth, still distancing the Captain from his original stereotypical American adventures. They introduced new characters who would have an important bearing on the maturing Brian Braddock's life. Mad Jim Jaspers, the Crazy Gang (later to appear in Excalibur) and the sexy Saturnyne typified the feeling of quirky British eccentricity that has stayed with, and arguably dogged, Captain Britain ever since.

Enter Alan Moore

Dave Thorpe resigned as writer, thwarted in his desire to turn Captain Britain into a more politically aware strip.

He was replaced by Alan Moore, the writer of Marvelman and V for Vendetta in the British anthology title, Warrior. Moore's impact on the character was immediate and profound.

He transformed Mad Jim Jaspers from a second-rate crackpot into a mutant with near-omnipotent powers. Supporting cast members were unsentimentally and speedily despatched and eventually, in part of an intricately plotted continuing storyline, the Fury — one of the nastiest villains ever created by Marvel Comics — clinically executed Captain Britain.

But comic heroes don't die for long, and within weeks Captain Britain was rebuilt and resurrected by Merlin to reassume his position — in a world over which he was losing control.

Alan Moore concluded the storyline but left the Captain Britain series — and Marvel Comics — soon afterwards.

The character continued in Captain Britain, a new monthly which was written and drawn by Alan Davis. These latter stories were collected together as a trade paperback, but are also scheduled to feature in issues 6 and 7 of the new Classic Captain Britain series.

Story of the reprint

For years readers and fans of the character couldn't understand why the earlier Alan Moore and Alan Davis stories had never been reprinted. Marvel attempted to reprint the series many times, but Alan Moore refused to give permission for them to do so. Apocryphal comics history has it that Marvel US reprinted one of Alan Moore's Doctor Who stories without obtaining his permission. Moore responded by withholding permission to use any further stories. Copyright laws in the UK and US differ and ruled that, although the Marvel parent considered Marvel UK a wholly-owned branch of the US company, Alan Moore had to give his permission for the use of characters and storylines he had created.

Recently however, Moore was reported in Comics International to have said he had no objection to Marvel reprinting the stories, and offered to donate his royalties to either The Comic Book Legal Defense Fund or the other Captain Britain creators who may have missed out on fees.

The new Classic Captain Britain series has been recoloured and the first issue, retailing at $2.50, ships on May 23. Alan Davis, long associated with the character's development, is providing new covers for the seven-issue reprint.

The mystery of Mike Danger

THERE seems to be some confusion over Frank Miller's contribution to new Tekno launch, Mickey Spillane's Mike Danger.

In a January 13-dated press release from Tekno Comix, the Florida-based company announced: "Frank Miller will provide pencils and inks for the cover of the first issue of Tekno's Mickey Spillane's Mike Danger comic book."

Yet American trade papers have declared that Miller, currently producing Sin City for Legend, will be publishing the entire package, including interior art and script.

Mike Danger takes the hard-boiled private eye from the Fifties and transplants him into New York, in the year 2052.

The new series pits Danger against 21st-century criminals, who are not accustomed to his brutal tactics. The ongoing series is to be written by Max Allan Collins and illustrated by Eduardo Barreto.

When asked about his forthcoming work on the Tekno launch, Miller said: "I would never deny Spillane's my favourite writer and he's bound to have a big effect on how I approach this stuff. The plan I had from the beginning for the first Sin City was to take Mike Hammer [another of Spillane's creations] a step further."

This is Mickey Spillane's return to comics after a 50-year hiatus. Spillane developed Mike Danger in the 1940s while contributing scripts to Captain America, Sub-Mariner and Captain Marvel, the leading characters of the day.

The first issue will ship in May, and will retail at $1.95.

Also in May from Tekno are John Jakes' Mullkon Empire and Neil Gaiman's Lady Justice.

DIATOM, a SF/fantasy comic, is the first release from new comic-book publisher PhotoGraphics.

The company states that it aims to "stretch the boundaries of conventional comics storytelling" by using state-of-the-art computer technology and photography.

PhotoGraphics admits that Diatom isn't the first photo-comic, but is the first to use computer-manipulated live-action visuals.

Each issue of Diatom will be standard comic size, printed on coated stock and 40 pages in length. The first issue ships in April, and will retail for $4.95.

Death comics

PARADOX Press's follow-up to the critically acclaimed Big Book of Urban Legends is Big Book of Death, which offers a candid look at the subject of dying.

The 224-page squarebound $12.95 book is written by Bronwyn Carlton, and examines such topics as spontaneous human combustion, methods of body disposal, capital punishment techniques, tours of famous cemeteries — and bizarre ways to die.

Seventy-one illustrators are working on the project, including Glenn Barr, Steve Dillon, Rebecca Guay, Phil Winslade and Tristan Schane. The book ships on April 25.

Tex Avery comics

Wolf & Red is a three-issue series featuring the Tex Avery-created characters from the MGM cartoons that began after Avery's departure from Warner Bros in 1942. The series, which features two stories in each issue, is written by Henry Gilroy and drawn by various artists. Issue 1 retails for $2.50 and ships on May 9 from Dark Horse Comics.

Aliens vs Superman and Predator

THE eagerly-anticipated Superman vs Aliens is a three-issue series written and pencilled by Superman stalwart Dan Jurgens, with inks by Kevin Nowlan.

Produced in the same format as Superman/Doomsday, the Man of Steel's encounter with the aliens happens as a result of his search for Krypton. Despite being published exclusively by Dark Horse, Mike Carlin, editor of the Superman line promised: "It fits with current Superman continuity".

● Former Ghost Rider artists Javier Saltares and Jimmy Palmiotti team up with Dark Horse mainstay Randy Stradley for a two-issue Aliens v Predator series: Duel, a sequel to the 1991 original.

Duel is set many years after the carnage wrought on the planet Ryushi. A beacon sends a distress signal and the military ship Brilliant responds, and becomes embroiled in a war between two of the galaxy's powerful races.

The first issue of Aliens v Predator: Duel, priced at $2.50, ships on March 14.

● Aliens vs Predator: War is a five-issue series (beginning with a reprint issue 0) by Randy Stradley and Chris Warner, following the exploits of honourary Predator Machiko Noguchi — the sole survivor of the first Aliens vs Predator mini-series.

The series is a parallel sequel to Aliens vs Predator. Priced $2.50, it begins shipping on May 2.

● Aliens: Mondo Pest is a reprint of the three stories that originally appeared in Dark Horse Comics.

Written by Henry Gilroy and illustrated by Ronnie del Carmen, it recounts the story of Herk Mondo, a cigar chomping, butt-kicking alien hunter, and his quest for the ultimate prey, an alien. This 40-page one-shot will retail for $2.95 and ship on April 4.

● Predator: Jungle Tales is a $2.95 one-shot reprint title collecting a story previously published in Dark Horse Comics.

Return of hero who never existed

TRIUMPH was DC's first Silver Age superhero, (according to DC's recent retroactive continuity) idolised by millions and respected by the young members of the Justice League of America and the new protector of Metropolis, Superman.

But during a battle with a group of invading aliens, the hero was ejected through a rip in the time-fabric of the Universe, only to reappear shortly before Zero Hour.

But when he came back, instead of being greeted with jubilation by his adoring fans, he found himself an unknown. The world, and more importantly the superheroes, had forgotten all about him.

Triumph was an anomaly of Zero Hour, an honoured superhero lost in time. But the character's existence is redefined when the Justice League Task Force takes him under its wing, the story of which is told in this new four-issue mini-series.

Triumph, which is written by the character's creator, Christopher (The Ray) Priest, and drawn by Mike (Freak Force) Miller and John (Nocturne) Stokes, retails for $1.75, and the first standard-format issue ships on April 4.

Priest is also the writer of the first Ray Annual, part of this year's Year One theme. The 64-page title, drawn by Oscar (The Flash) Jimenez and Chip Wallace looks back to The Ray's first 12 months as a superhero and his initial confrontation with Death Masque.

Shipping on April 4, The Ray Annual 1 retails for $3.95.

Marvel axes 13 poor-sellers

DURING 1992, at the height of the comics industry expansion, Marvel Comics announced that its aim was to have 200 titles on the newsstands.

But after the cancellation of many poor-selling comics Marvel will, by June 1995, be publishing fewer than 60 regular monthly titles.

With a number of mini-series, super-sized specials (to replace annuals) and Unlimited titles, Marvel's monthly output increases to an average of 80 titles (of which 25% involve licensed characters) per month across the year.

Marvel's most recent list of comics casualties (with final issue numbers) is as follows: Ravage 2099 #33; Namor 62; Warlock & The Infinity Watch 42 (the storyline will continue in Malibu's Curse of Rune series); Guardian of the Galaxy 62; Blaze 12; Fury of S.H.I.E.L.D 4 (launched as an ongoing series); Morbius 33;

Punisher 104, Punisher War Journal 80 and Punisher War Zone 41. All Punisher titles are to be relaunched in July with Marvel Edge Unlimited 1 and eventually replaced by a single new Punisher comic. Jae (Hellshock) Lee supplies the covers for all the final issues of the Punisher comics.

Conan Saga, Savage Sword of Conan 235 and Conan the Adventurer 14 are to be replaced by a new series, Conan, featuring the work of Simon Bisley.

There are unconfirmed reports that X-Men Classic and Sabretooth Classics are both scheduled to end in the summer and be replaced by a tenth X-book.

DC unveils its Loose Cannon

DC HAS announced that another of the characters introduced in its 1993 Bloodlines annuals is to get a mini-series in April, with an ongoing series planned for the autumn.

Loose Cannon (pictured above, with Superman) is a four-issue story featuring the eponymous hero and his life in Metropolis.

New X-Force writer Jeph Loeb and Adam Pollina are the creators of a story about policeman Eddie Walker, the Loose Cannon, and his recruitment into Maggie Sawyer's Metropolis Special Crimes Unit.

After appearing to murder his own alter ego, Loose Cannon finds himself being chased by both the SCU's superhero division and the Kryptonian-organism, Eradicator.

The first issue is scheduled to ship on April 11, and will retail for $1.75.

Glory and Gen-13 in new series

GEN-13 returns for a new regular monthly series in April. Brandon Choi, J Scott Campbell and Alex Garner are to pick up the threads of the series from where it finished, in issue 5 of the mini-series. Brandon Choi promises there will be a lot of surprises in the coming months...

The first issue finds the young team (pictured above) adapting to life in their new base, in San Diego, in a an extended 30-page story which will retail at $2.95.

Mike (Wonder Woman) Deodato Jr, one of the hottest artists in contemporary comics, has joined Image to draw a new ongoing series for Rob Liefeld's Extreme Studios.

Deodato is partly responsible for Wonder Woman's return to popularity and, apart from drawing the DC heroine, he is also penciller for Marvel's The Avengers.

Glory, the title featuring the former Brigade member, is written by Jo (Catwoman) Duffy and deals with Glory's links to Youngblood director Graves, and her problems in fending off would-be suitors.

The first issue retails for $2.50 and ships in April.

Image is also offering, Image 0, previously a sendaway comic, obtained by collecting coupons, for retail sale.

The 32-page issue includes stories featuring Savage Dragon (by Erik Larsen); Stormwatch (by Jim Lee), Shadowhawk (by Jim Valentino), Troll (by Rob Liefeld) and Todd Mcfarlane pin-ups.

LONG ago, in an industry far, far away...

Comic Wars Chapter 4: "A New Wrinkle"

...It was a dark time for the Distributor Alliance.

One of their own had been seduced by The Dark Side and sold his business to The Comic Empire, giving them a new and devastating weapon: The Death World. Once a small, unthreatening distributor, The Death World had been transformed overnight into a weapon of potentially unstoppable power, capable of destroying an entire status quo with a few well-placed shots.

In a time already rife with uncertainty, The Distributor Alliance — in its hidden base in Norleens — found itself gearing up for what could be the great final conflict...

Everyone was shouting at once, and it was all that Admiral Capgem could do to make himself heard over the ruckus. "People!" he shouted. "Everyone: Settle!"

Capgem looked over his battalion of generals, all recruited from the subset of The Distributor Alliance, namely, the daring Rebel Retailers. They were feisty, angry, and, admittedly, frightened. For years they had been bad-mouthing The Comic Empire, feeling they were doing so with impunity. Yet now The Comic Empire had taken a deadly and unexpected step closer to them. The increased proximity was highly disconcerting.

"We need to have a coherent plan — a consistent front. Now is not the time for petty bickering." Admiral Capgem eyed them sternly. "I want reports from all concerned, starting with — you," he said, pointing to the far left: "General Panic."

"We're dead!" shrieked General Panic. "This is the end of the direct market as we know it! We're doomed! — The Comic Empire will — "

Capgem winced slightly. "General, turn down the volume just a touch, all right?"

"The Comic Empire," Panic began again, desperately trying to rein in his sense of dread, "has finally shown its true colours. For years now we've been seeing the Empire slowly making its moves, plotting, planning — pretending that it was on our side, but all along it's been planning to screw us to the wall and feast on our living hearts."

With a sigh, Capgem said, "How about we get back to you later?"

"I've had a bad feeling about this for some time now."

"Yes, I'm sure you have, General Malaise."

"I mean, you don't have to be a genius to see the pattern: the market flooding, the multiple editions, the bogus 'test' with two different versions of the same title, the Empire Mart disaster, the shrinking market share.

"The market has lost faith in the Comic Empire. So it was only a matter of time before The Comic Empire lost faith in us. Clearly, this is just the first step toward the final goal of dispensing with the retailers completely."

"Just wait a minute," General Calm spoke up. "Couldn't we be jumping the gun just a little here? All The Empire has said is that The Death World has been created as an experiment, to — "

"And that's all we were! And now they're washing off the microscope slide and stamping, "Game over, man!" on our file folder!"

"Someone muzzle General Panic, please," said Capgem tiredly. "General Calm, you were saying?"

" — to try various marketing strategies," Calm continued. "The Death World has never been a galactic distributor. It can't just be made into one overnight. Furthermore, the notion that they're trying to cut us out of the loop seems alarmist."

"Who said anything about being alarmist?"

"Shut up, Panic," said General Knowledge. "The fact is that The Comic Empire having a distribution arm owned by the same parent company is hardly new."

"He's right," said General Irony. "You know, we're running around and getting upset and predicting the end of everything. But years ago, when the newsstand distributors were making the same angry noises about the creation of the direct market, we just snickered. We didn't care. That's because the benefit fell to us. Now it seems to be going against us. Maybe this is karma."

"No, I refuse to accept that comparison," said Admiral Capgem firmly. "The direct market arose because the independent distributors and newsstands weren't getting the job done. We have been getting the job done."

"But obviously not to The Comic Empire's satisfaction," remarked General Malaise. "Their market share has been slipping, their public image is shot, and it would seem they blame us for it."

"If they want to look for scapegoats, they just need to look in the nearest mirror," said General Irony's twin brother, General Sarcasm.

Admiral Capgem clapped his hands firmly to regain attention. "Look, we have to call for some sort of general consensus. We've been paging him, but, unfortunately, General Consensus hasn't been answering his beeper. Let's try to work out some best- and worst-case scenarios here."

"There's a best case?" asked General Sarcasm.

"If we look for one, perhaps. General Speculation?"

"Well," said General Speculation, "worst case scenario: The Comic Empire decides to make The Death World the exclusive distributor of their product. They pull their product from Capgem. That's a huge bite out of Capgem's income.

"The Comic Empire's competitors start buying out, or creating, their own distributors. It becomes every Empire for itself, a sort of feudal system that splits the marketplace in many directions rather than uniting it. Small publishers are squeezed out or have to be subdistributed by larger publishers.

"Furthermore, The Comic Empire decides to improve its bottom line by cutting back on the discounts. It sells at, for instance, 50%, or even 40% off, rather than the 60% presently offered to distributors. Retailers have no choice but to knuckle under, because there's nowhere else to get the product. Their profits go down, and smaller retailers drop out or become absorbed by larger retailer chains."

"Like I said! We're doomed!"

They tried to ignore General Panic, but it wasn't easy. "And the upside?" asked Admiral Capgem nervously, already seeing his carefully built business crumbling beneath his feet.

"For us? Not much. Our only prayer is that the status quo remains as it is — but I don't see how that's possible. For The Empire, though, there's nothing but up sides. They have any number of directions they can go — and we can only hang on and see what happens."

"I don't understand something," piped up a new voice.

"And what would that be, General Confusion?"

"Well," said General Confusion, "are any of The Empire's competitors going to trust The Empire to distribute their product? Even if the status remains quo, won't people automatically assume that The Empire will give top priority to its own comics?

"Furthermore, it means that every strategy, every new program, every announcement — everything that the competition comes up with and would ordinarily announce to retailers and distributors — would have to be fed directly to The Comic Empire as a matter of course.

"There's an old saying: 'Does Macy's tell Gimbels?' In this case, they'd have to. That can't possibly sit well with them. What competitor is going to want to become a customer of his arch-rival?"

There was muttering going on in the back of the room which Admiral Capgem was no longer able to ignore. He cleared his throat and said, "Excuse me. General Rumour? Is there something you'd like to share with the rest of us?"

"Well," said General Rumour, clearing his throat nervously. "General Speculation and I were just chatting and, well, we were just thinking, if we were The Comic Empire, what our next move would be."

"That being?"

"You know that, about a month before they purchased The Death World, they bought out a small publisher, Pismo Comics*."

*[named after a West Coast US beach - Ed]

"Yes, we all know that."

"Well, the Pismo comics line is doing adequately, but it's not burning up the sales charts. And its percentage of the market share is fairly small. And I think we also all agree that The Empire's experience and public relations are such that they couldn't possibly have The Death World become the exclusive distributor of Empire's product overnight."

"Where are you going with this, General Rumour?"

"What if The Comic Empire decided to make Pismo Comics available exclusively through The Death World?"

There was a long moment of silence. "That's an interesting notion," said Admiral Capgem, scratching his chins thoughtfully. "But would the retailers fall for that? Since Pismo is such a small percentage of the market, what's to stop retailers from simply ordering nothing?"

And now General Speculation piped up. "Maybe The Empire would try to make it worth their while. It might offer Pismo at 70% off. An 'act of good faith' that would endeavour to defuse retailer fears, goose interest in Pismo Comics, and make Pismo Comics more profitable on a per-unit basis. At the same time, it would enable The Comic Empire to get its feet wet and its system in place for taking all its comic books exclusive at a later date."

"It's a no-lose proposition for them," pointed out General Knowledge. "If it works out, great. If it doesn't work out, they can simply ease out Pismo Comics entirely. But they'd still have the production facilities, which they can use to springboard the new line of Debris Comics that they announced a couple of months back."

More voices started to rise in debate, when suddenly there was an ear-splitting howl of the proximity alarm.

"What the hell is that?" demanded the Admiral.

From the monitor station, General Concern turned to the admiral with distress on his face.

"General!" snapped Capgem. "Get Major Distress off your face and report immediately!"

"Later," said Concern to Distress. She smiled and flounced away. Concern turned back to Admiral Capgem, all business. "We're being invaded, sir. Outposts report that the newcomer has broken through our shields and is coming this way."

"Is it?"

Concern nodded gloomily. "I'm afraid so, yes. It's The Comic Empire's representative."

"Not —"

"Yes. It's Marv Vader. He'll be in our midst any second — and there's nothing we can do to stop him."

And from the corner of the room, General Panic shrieked, "Help us, Obi Wan Seuling! You're our only hope!" This time, no one told him to shut up.

Top-shelf title from Marvel UK

Report by Lew Stringer

GLAM Metal Detectives is the title of a new adults-only humour comic to be launched by Marvel UK on March 27. Priced at £1.25, the 32-page full colour one-shot is based on the forthcoming BBC2 comedy series produced by Peter Richardson, who was a key figure in the original Comic Strip Presents team.

Comics tied in with television series frequently appear long after a property ceases to be "hot", due to lengthy license negotiations. However, in the case of Glam Metal Detectives, the comic goes on sale the same week that the TV series begins transmitting.

Edited by the madly enthusiastic David Leach (one-time contributor to Oink and Toxic), Glam Metal Detectives' lead strip features the artwork of Art Wetherall. Like the TV show, the rest of the comic features a wide mix of parodic content, including Colin Corleone (He Thinks He's the Godfather), drawn by Lew Stringer, and Betty's Mad Dash, the adventures of a Twenties flapper on the run illustrated by Matthew Taylor — who is described by Leach as a "hot new talent".

Rather than use writers unfamiliar with the characters, the strips are written by Peter Richardson and the performers themselves, with some fine-tuning from David Leach.

Can comic actors write comic-strips? Find out on March 27.

Spit promotes free (safe) sex

AS FROM its April issue, the adult humour monthly Spit undergoes a revamp, gaining a full-colour glossy cover and a host of new characters. It will also carry a cover-mounted gift — a free luminous pink condom — with cover promotion by regular character Teenage Mum.

Published by MAI Comics and featuring art by (among others) Graham Hey, Lew (Viz) Stringer and Chris Whitehead, the new-look Spit will retail for £1.25.

MAI is also giving a boost to its football humour magazine, C'Mon Ref! The irreverent soccer publication has always featured a few pages of comic-strips, but from issue 12 (on sale late March), the magazine will feature a 16-page pullout comic every month.

Because a survey in an earlier issue showed that C'Mon Ref's readers preferred strips to pinups, this seems a sensible move. As well as the regular contributors, the as yet untitled comic supplement gains the artistic talent of Antony Smith, who has recently had his Acid Head Arnie collection published by Knockabout Comics.

IN BRIEF

Bidding for Dandy 1

THE success of D C Thomson's Big Five story papers — Adventure, Hotspur, Rover, Skipper and Wizard — led to the publication of the first edition of The Dandy Comic on December 4, 1937.

Aimed at the younger 6-13 market, it introduced such favourites as Korky the cat and Desperate Dan, the only Dandy characters to have survived to the present day.

The initial print run of 250,000 copies created a comic that became so successful that it was joined a year later by its inseparable partner, The Beano. Many of these popular pre-war comics were pulped in the early 1940s for the war effort, which explains the extreme rarity of this landmark issue.

The Dandy Comic 1, which has an estimated value of between £1750 and £2000, is being offered by auctioneer house ComPAL in its latest catalogue. For further information on this and other lots, contact 0171 586 3007.

New Titan books

TITAN Books is scheduled to release a collection of the first four issues of the Books of Magic Vertigo series.

Books of Magic: Bindings is written by John Ney Rieber, with artwork by Gary Amaro and Peter Gross. Retailing for £7.99, the 96-page bound collection goes on sale on March 16.

Titan has also flagged the release of its own edition of DC's February-launched Elseworlds title, Superman: Kal.

Due to ship on February 24, the prestige format comic will retail for £3.99. The story is a Superman adventure set during King Arthur's time, and is written by Dave Gibbons and drawn by Jose Garcia Lopez.

New British showcase

THE creator co-op N-Studios is to publish its first title in March.

Widow: Made in Britain (Matthewson III), will precede Anarachy (Gueck, Sadowski and Johnston).

Sales on the above will dictate the publication of City Limits and Mercy Kill, by Gueck and Matthewson III.

Twist and sell

THE Twist and Shout Comics Pack, contains the first issues of Richard Johnston's Dirtbag, Distributors charge $15 for the pack or for £10 from Twist & Shout, 340 Sunderland Road, Tyne & Wear.

Joe Kubert to draw Tex Willer

AS far back as May 1994, Bonelli (Italy's largest comics company) made a public announcement that Joe Kubert had agreed to draw a graphic novel featuring its most successful character, the Western hero, Tex.

Tex has been the leading Italian-created comics character since 1948, and is generally considered to have originated the whole spaghetti Western genre, which later spread from comics to films and allowed the rise of such great talents as Sergio Leone, Clint Eastwood, Terrence Hill and Lee Van Cleef.

The character was created by Giovanni Luigi Bonelli and artist Aurelio Galleppini, but over the years it has been drawn by many of the finest European artists, such as Jesus Blasco, Jordi Bernet, Victor de la Fuente and Albert Giolitti.

Joe Kubert will draw the 224-page Tex story, to be written by Claudio Nizzi, for five 48-page books (which are a regular part of Bonelli output).

After the comparative failure of his Tor mini-series and his Punisher issues, Kubert might find it comfortable to produce work for a country where he is still regarded as a master Western artist (a genre which is consistently popular in Europe).

Tex Willer is a legendary name in Italy and Europe, with over 600,000 copies sold every month in Italy alone. Tex has also been the subject of academic studies and books dedicated to this long-lasting comics phenomenon.

Kubert has had a highly successful comics career with DC Comics, drawing heroes such as Sgt Rock and Hawkman. He founded the Joe Kubert school of Art in the 1970s, of which many of today's top artists, such as Jan Duursema and Adam and Andy Kubert are graduates.

Marvel Comics Italian-style

*Overview by Fabio P Barbieri

APART from acquiring Malibu as a "California Unit", Marvel also has a "Rome Unit", which publishes reprints of American comics and establishes relationships with Italian professionals.

This is how big-name Italian creators like Dante (Fantastic Force) Basianoni, Pino (ClanDestine) Rinaldi, and Claudio Castellini have started working for the American publisher. Castellini, whose covers made an immediate impact on the American market, is a top professional in his country, and former lead artist on the highly successful splatter-horror series, Dylan Dog, which was recently published in America as Damian Darke). Castellini, Rinaldi and Bastianoni came from a generation of fans who grew up with Sixties and Seventies American superhero comics; Rinaldi is overjoyed to be taking over an Alan Davis title.

There is talk of creating Italian characters on the Captain Britain pattern (one hopes they will not be insensitive enough to produce a Capitan Italia; in the current political situation, with the fascist AN party still within a whisker of office, it would be insensitive to foster a nationalistic image).

More retail casualties as the industry contracts further 1994 ended with a spate of redundancies in the comics publishing industry.

With the exception of editorial and colouring departments, Malibu is reported to have made sweeping cuts to its manning levels since being acquired by Marvel.

Following the re-structuring of the editorial hierarchy, Marvel's own editorial side also suffered large staff cuts, and the UK's leading comics publisher Fleetway also made drastic cutbacks including a publisher (Chris Power), production head Siobhan Geraghty and 2000AD editor Alan McKenzie.

The UK comics retail industry now appears to be following suit. Established over ten years ago, Glasgow's AKA Books & Comics closed its doors for the final time on Thursday, February 9th, only a few days after Siegi's Comics ceased trading from its Canterbury base.

Other recent retail casualties in the specialist comics industry include Oxford's Rainbow's End, Blackburn's Box Five News, Nottingham's Strange Tales, Andy's Comic Cavern of Windsor, Sunderland's Fantasique, Lancaster's Sartori Comics and Aberdeen's Kaos Komics.

Onward and upward

In a surprise move, retailer turned writer Paul Sassienie resigned from Stateside Comics on Monday, February 14th, in favour of pursuing a career in freelance writing, following the success of his first work, Ebury Press's The Comic Book.

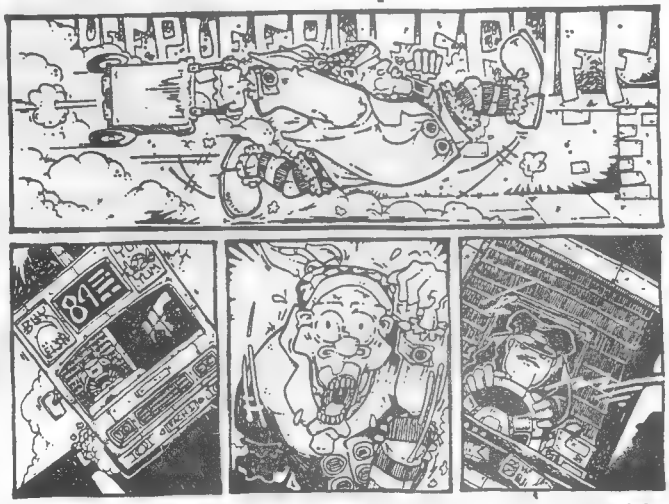
A lifetime comics fan, Paul said, "But I won't be far away from the industry. I've a few interesting projects in the pipeline."

One such project is a comedy-related book, while a second edition of The Comic Book is currently being worked on.

Paul's close friend for over 30 years and Stateside's chief executive Martin Gold said, "Even in these deep recessionary times, we feel that the new slimline Stateside can be more like a friendly family store than a supermarket chain.

"Our first year has been a positive one, and we only wish Paul could have stayed on board for what we feel will be a bright future."

Innovative small press release



SMALL Press projects have certainly come of age in recent months, with the revamping and upgrading of titles such as Inkling and self-published comics like Paul Grist's Kane and Phil Elliot's Greenhouse Warriors.

All have gained coverage in the wider industry, following in the wake of the success achieved by US small press publishers like Terry Moore's Strangers in Paradise and Martin Wagner's Hepcats.

Produced in South East London, Dead Fly Pie issue 1 features six high calibre stories. Published by Walrus Press, Dead Fly Pie introduces the reader to new and established small press creators' work, including Sam Banfield's Fare Stage (pictured above), Nick Watts' The New Adventures of Puddle Boy and Simon Brooks' String (pictured below).

The 28-page first issue is on sale now from selected specialist retailers or directly from the publisher for £2 (inclusive of postage) at 15 Roydene Road, Plumstead, London SE18 1PZ.

NETworks

A monthly rundown on the latest opinions of fans and professionals from Britain and America, as expressed on the computer internet. Compiled by Richard Johnston and the NETworks team.

Starman goes Vertigo?

This thread on rec.arts.comics.misc was spurred by Diamond Comic Distributors' advance catalogue, Previews, listing the comic book Starman as a Vertigo title, part of DC's distinct cutting edge imprint. Net comments were mixed.

Mikel (Norwitz@vax.lse.ac.uk) posted, "I think this is a terrible idea. I enjoy the darkness in the Starman series, but prefer that it remain as accessible and as central-to-DC-universe as possible." while David Leblanc (david.leblanc@gaquatic.iii.net) referred to Starman #5, "...in which James Robinson says in the letter pages "Well, the fact is that Starman will never be a Vertigo book. Get over it."

It took DC's marketing department (dcobobw@aol.com) to stem the flow of disgruntled mainstream DC readers by posting that it was just a misprint by Diamond and that "Starman is not a Vertigo title".

Giving the Devil his due

A post from Nick (nicloa@d0gs01.fnal) on Daredevil 338, after Dan Chichester had been fired from the book, asked about the writer's credit to Alan Smithee: "But the real question is, who the hell is Alan Smithee, since people say this is a kind of "mask" name?

Well, after looking at #337, in the same rack, the editor (Ralph Macchio) says: "next issue, the return of DGC". Is it true? Dan Chichester returned to the book?". A follow-up post from Dan Chichester (dgchi@aol.com) in reply stated: "These kind of blurbs are written months (or at least weeks!) before the fact. At the time Ralph wrote that, I had not yet been fired from the title."

Another post in reply to Nick from Daredevil editor, Marie Javins (mjavins@aol.com) said, "Ralph is many things but he is not a liar." Tony Cianfaglione (ab616@cfn.cs.dal.ca) noted, "In movies, when a director leaves a dubious production and doesn't want his name associated with the film, the credit usually goes to 'Alan Smithee."

So is Dan Chichester writing Dardevil in disguise? While the issue in question was solicited with Chichester's name on it, Jerry Ray (vapspwi@prism.gatech.edu) posted that "an issue of Comic Shop News a few weeks back reported that DGC was off the book, I believe starting with the Wages of Sin arc."

It looks as if Dan Chichester has been kept on past his firing date, but as for how long, nobody's telling.

However Dan Chichester did make another post where he stated "But Ralph (Macchio) and I have got a DD somethin' or other cookin' that should provide a reasonable hornhead fix. Details when I can let 'em loose..."

Net income

Doug Glass (dglass@kuhub.cc.uk) posted in reply to enquiries about creator royalties, "I'm not sure what the figures are, but I've heard that a writer/artist gets a 20% royalty from the major companies. Not bad for writing/drawing trite stories and sophomoric art."

Dan Chichester responded "Gee, Doug, you should give it a try, especially with an imagination like that! Top selling books (like over 200k) maybe creep up to a 6 per cent total which is split between the writer, artist and penciller. On average, the percentage is probably closer to two, and that's for numbers that a good 90% of the titles out there aren't even getting close to these days. Gosh, maybe I'll go find a worthwhile career to make up for my trite and sophomoric sins against high culture."

Steve Lieber, Hawkman artist, also popped by with "I don't know where you got your info on royalties, but it's waaaaaayyyy off. For one thing, royalties don't even start until a certain sales level is met, and there aren't that many books that meet those levels (which differ depending on whether the book is direct sales only or sold on newsstands as well). Second, your estimate of what the royalty percentage is for a writer-artist is about 4 times higher than reality. Royalty checks are nice things, but no one (except the guys on the best-selling books) is making anything within an order of magnitude of what you're describing."

So it looks as if our favourite creators are left to wallow in their poverty...

Maxing on the multi-media gravy train

An apparently drunken Scot wandered onto the net and posted that fresh from the news of Touchstone signing up Alan Moore and Eddie Campbell's From Hell — part of Hollywood's current love affair with Jack the Ripper, Grant Morrison was heard after a Scottish comics mart to murmur about an Invisibles TV series.

Well, after its debut as a sticker poster on Darlene's door in Roseanne, anything's possible.

Kurt words

Kurt Busiek has posted his upcoming plans, one of which could lead to a new style of Marvel comic book. Untold Tales of Spider-Man is a new monthly from Marvel that ships in June.

"The series will be 99 cents for 20 pages of story, will feature mostly single-issue tales and take place during the early days of Spider-Man, weaving in and out of established continuity to tell "unseen" adventures. The idea here is to provide an "entry-level" book that anybody can enjoy whether they're familiar with Spider-Man's history or not. But the attention to continuity in terms of how the adventures fit in between previous adventures and how the characters develop will be exacting...

"Early on, it will be dealing with Spider-Man's attempt to sway public opinion by joining the police force; his previously unseen second clash with the Sandman; Aunt May's attempts to get Peter to see an optometrist after losing his glasses; a Torch/Spidey team-up against the Wizard, and the usual much much more. The book will be pencilled by Pat Olliffe."

David Carr (gt8768a@prism.gatech.edu) posted, "I hope Marvel is careful and doesn't catch "Superboy Syndrome" which really foula up your continuity years down the road. And you can bet your ass we're gonna see "Untold Tales of..." Wolverine, the X-Men, the Fantastic Four, and others if Spidey is successful."

Probably:...

More Kurt remarks

Kurt also told groupers what else he was doing. "Kurt Busiek's Astro City is my baby, a creator-owned series published by Image in the manner of Groo or Shaman's Tears. Written by me, art by Brent Anderson, and painted covers by Alex Ross...*

"Astro City, the series, is something of a follow-up to Marvels — where Marvels showed you what it would be like to live in the Marvel Universe through the eyes of an everyman journalist, Astro City will show you what it's like to live in a superhero universe through a lot of different perspectives. You'll see the impossible dreams of the world's mightiest hero; a neophyte reporter's first day on the job covering a cosmic combat of earth-shaking import (and why it doesn't make the papers); a man who discovers a hero's secret ID and finds out how dangerous his new knowledge is; a young woman who commutes every day from an old-world enclave rife with mystic danger and occult threats to the gleaming center city where the dangers are more brightly colored but no less real; a young boy who comes to the city with dreams of becoming a kid sidekick; a just-paroled super-villain hoping to go straight (but when you're head-to-toe steel and world-infamous, those service-sector jobs can be hard to find); an ex-corporate hero on the talk show circuit -- and much, much more."

Steve Harris (summers@netcom.com) replied, "After reading all this Kurt Busiek nonsense, I've got to wonder if this man has heard of sleep."

PAD makes a stand

PETER David leapt to his own defense when a netter criticised him for comments made about Marvel's acquisition of Heroes World.

"Let's get something straight — Marvel's been acting like a business. Nothing more, nothing less. Other companies do far more, and probably far worse.

"It's just that we're all keyed in to Marvel and so it seems more evil.

"Now...they've been making business decisions that I don't necessarily support. If I were still on staff in the sales department, I very likely would have resigned rather than try and toe the company line.

"But I'm a freelancer. As a freelancer, my interests are centered around producing a good, solid, entertaining comic. Period. I already have a track record of walking off books when I feel that my ability to do so has been jeopardized, leaving fairly sizeable cheques behind, if that's what this is all about.

"Now...if Marvel did something so heinously immoral (like, say, contribute large amounts of money to the Neo-Nazis) I'd cut ties. But their corporate manoeuvres are simply not enough to prompt me to leave characters I enjoy writing and editors I like working with. And while doing so, I publicly take to task corporate heads who could fire me off the books and put a substantial crimp in my income.

"The fact that I'm still there...shouldn't that indicate to you that the company isn't necessarily as morally corrupt as you suggest?"

Byrned lady

The announcement that John Byrne is to take over the DC comic Wonder Woman from issue 101 has sparked a long discussion on the net.

While it began with the merits or otherwise of John Byrne's writing and art, the discussion was quickly diverted.

Johanna Draper (sg94ace9@dunx1.ocs.drexel.edu) stated that the reason Wonder Woman had not succeeded in the past was that "powerful women intimidate" young men, the staple readership of mainstream comic books.

John Adcox (johnadcox@aol.com) was of the opinion that it was more to do with poor creative teams.

Abhijit Khale (Abhijit_Khale@transarc.com), one of the net's comic experts, retorted "the most succesful title with a female star back in the early 80s was Dazzler (gak), a comic which starred a character with no limit to her powers". He added "the longest running Marvel title with a female superheroine star (excluding Patsy Walker, since she wasn't a superheroine when a star) was the She Hulk, a title which stars one of the strongest characters in the Marvel Universe". He then queried "why adolescents don't seem to have any "rampant discomfort" with characters like Lady Death or Vampirella, who are both extremely powerful (and sexy)."

Response was that the She-Hulk was a wimped down version of Hulk, but Dazzler's extreme powers were never really shown except when triggered and the success of the "bad girls" has much more to do with sex than with power. The discussion is still going on and is rapidly becoming one of the longest on the rec.arts. comics.misc newsgroup. Neither side is giving way... is Wonder Woman a poor character or is it the fault of the audience that she hasn't sold well.

Whatever happens, there will be an eager audience for John Byrne's treatment.

The Baker and Dorkin Show

Kyle Baker and Evan Dorkin, accomplished cartoonists and co-creators of Instant Piano, had a brief fight on the net. Kyle posted: "The chance to work with Evan, Mark, Stephen and Robbie is the only reason I'm doing this book. I quit the comic book field four years ago, and with the exception of some inking done to help friends with deadlines, and covers for other old friends, there are only two comic books that I care to work on (I don't make money on either of them). Instant Piano is one, and the other is Break The Chain, a literacy project aimed at inner-city youngsters. That's why I still live in ghettos on both coasts. For money, I write movies and TV. Also, I do the weekly "Bad Publicity" cartoon you mentioned for New York Magazine."

A highly-strung Evan Dorkin responded, "Maybe I shouldn't post this publicly, but I keep seeing these postings whining about money and comics from Kyle and they're driving me nuts. Contrary to what Kyle sez, we made okay dough on Instant Piano #1, at least I say we did. For nine pages of comic art that the world doesn't really need, I say you should be happy we got anything. Compared to New York Magazine or screenwriting rates it sucks, but c'mon, Kyle- at least you have the New York and screenwriting rates. Man, LA must really blow your ideas of money all out of proportion.... Every time you post something, I personally find it insulting because I've been working on no-income and low-income comics since '86 and I don't whine half as much as you do. My no-income work led to a halfway decent career, so who am I to complain? You sound worse than me back in 1987. I'm sorry if you live in a ghetto on both coasts—most people can only afford to live on one coast."

Kyle responded "You are absolutely right, and I apologize. You are one of the best friends I have in the world, and as I've said many times before here and in person, I owe you more than I could ever hope to repay. I am grateful for so much. I'm sorry you were upset by my recent post, and I am heartsick that I've hurt you. It was unintentional, please believe me. I understand now that it was inappropriate to discuss my finances publicly, but I only wanted to illustrate that my work in this industry means more to me than all the money in the world. That I am inspired by our friendship alone in creating this book, for there is no greater reward than love. The many talented people I have been amazingly fortunate to collaborate with have all been great friends, and it their friendship that I value most of all. In my post, I just wanted to praise you, Stephen, Mark, Larry Doyle, and others. I'm sorry I muddled it up by a really bad choice of words and bad writing.

Evan apologised too, concluding "Boy, am I gonna hear it for this one! If Kyle breaks my hands over this, at least I'll still be able to get pencilling jobs in this industry."

Analysis and market share

Marvel Comics	46%
Image Comics	33%
DC Comics	21%

Marvel, courtesy of The X-Men, regained its top spot in Diamond's 100 best-selling comics of 1994 calculations, after losing out to an Image dominance that held more than 50% of the top 100 last year.

But Marvel only scored with one non-X-Men title: Amazing Spider-Man #388. Marvel's two top ten books were both special issues: X-Men #30 featuring the marriage of Scott (Cyclops) Summers to Jean Grey was the fourth biggest selling comic of the year, while Marvel's first all-chromium covered comic, Generation X #1, placed at number seven.

The entire year's solicited issues of both X-Men and Uncanny X-Men charted in the 100 and it is interesting to note that mutant hero Gambit's fourth spin-off issue, which placed at 94th, actually sold more copies than the previous three issues.

Image dropped to a 33% share of the top 100 but took the surprise top seller of the year in Violator #1. Written by Alan Moore and drawn by Bart Sears, it sold more copies than any other comic last year and two of the three mainstream comics which Moore wrote in 1994 charted in the top 50. For a man who publicly announced his distain for mainstream titles, Moore must be having second thoughts with such high rewards received for his about-face scripting.

Spawn dominates the chart for Todd McFarlane and even the much criticised issues #19 & 20 placed high in Diamond's sales last year. McFarlane's character features in 13 of the top 100 books, a feat only bettered by the two main X-Men titles.

Wetworks, Codename Strykeforce, Pitt, WildC.A.T.s and Gen-13 all featured prominently in the charts, proving that McFarlane, Lee, Silvestri and Keown are still the top attractions at Image.

DC, it could be argued, never expected the same amount of success in 1994 as it had in 1993. The Death and Reign of Superman and the Batman Knightfall sagas had put DC neck and neck with Marvel for the position behind Image. In 1994 it was still the Dark Knight and the Man of Steel that dominated for the company, but also the ground-breaking Zero Hour: Crisis in Time five-issue mini-series bolstered up their market share. DC also had the most unexpected entry in the top 100 in Steel #1, which placed at 59th, despite the series now struggling to make the top 100 on the distributors monthly orders.

General: While the 1992 and 1993 charts were led by gimmick covers and trading card giveaways, 1994 has seen a return to strong story telling and artwork being determining factors. Less than 10% of the comics in the top 100 featured cover enhancements or gimmicks. Despite the price of comic books having risen and a definite swing towards prestige format titles, it would appear that the comic buying public is returning to traditional values. This could also be an indication of why Image's market share has dropped and only the consistently popular titles placed in the top 100.

Associate editor Sarah Bolesworth looks at recent media coverage of comics and related product

THE WIDELY reported case of Jake Baker, a 20-year-old student of Michigan State University, charged on February 10 with "transmitting a threat to injure" via the internet, raises legal questions that should be of concern to any net user.

Baker published a message on the net in which he fantasised about raping, torturing and killing one of his female class-mates. The FBI traced the source and arrested him. Baker now faces charges that could lead to a five-year prison sentence.

Baker's crime was presumably provoked by some kind of mental disorder. But his case means that the net is unlikely to escape police surveillance for very long.

The Home Office told Comics International that as this was still "quite a new area", specific monitoring of the net had not yet been set up. But regional police forces have taken net-crime into their compass.

In London, the Met's Obscene Publications Squad told Comics International that they "don't monitor the internet, but if something is brought to our attention, we will certainly investigate". And last September, the Commercial Vice Squad of the West Midlands police arrested a group of Milton Keynes pornographers using the net to transmit obscene text and graphics.

Comics net users should bear in mind that the interpretation of the law is all, and the history of H M Customs' seizure of "obscene" material in comics should be an object lesson. In short, remember what you consider to be funny, sexy or clever might be judged illegal.

Even on a seemingly innocuous level, looking at the impassioned exchanges that take place about artists swiping other artists' material, corporate rip-offs and so on, comics net users should be aware that they are open to prosecution for defamation or libel.

Abusing artists or corporations could fall within the parameters of two main areas of legislation.

Defamation of character, where an individual's reputation is injured, is potentially actionable under the Broadcasting Act 1990. Civil prosecutions can be mounted and vast fines imposed — such as that suffered by Private Eye over the Rosemary Sutcliffe case.

Criminal defamatory libel (where a breach of the peace could be provoked) is much more serious and carries severe penalties, including imprisonment.

Blasphemous, seditious or obscene libel are all actionable under criminal law. To clarify, blasphemy "consists in the use of language having a tendency to vilify the Christian religion or the Bible" (McNae's Essential Law); seditious libel is "any words which are likely to disturb the internal peace and government of the country" — a pretty broad definition; and obscene libel is "whether the words or matter, if taken as a whole, would tend to deprave and corrupt those who are likely, having regard to all the circumstances, to read them".

So don't buy the hype about the net being some kind of anarchist's paradise. When you're posting messages, be aware of the fact that you're publishing or broadcasting them, and that national police forces exchange intelligence with each other as a matter of routine.

Business images

Remember that tired old cliche about comics growing up into graphic novels? Well, the way that comics have actually grown up is by being recognised as a legitimate medium in the mainstream press.

Take The Observer's Business section of February 5: To illustrate a front-page news piece on Disney's bid to encourage banks or building societies to start children's accounts under Disney character names, a large full-colour reproduction of Carl Barks' Uncle $crooge was used. "Which Disney character," said a note at the bottom of the text, "should the account be named after? Would Uncle Scrooge McDuck approve? Suggestions to Disney, Observer Business...".

Captain Dirk's Spider-Man

Producer Dirk Maggs had a phenomenally successful series of three-minute Batman dramas broadcast in BBC Radio 1's Mark Goodier Show last year. The collected Batman episodes were released on a best-selling CD, and aided Radio 1's moribund listener figures to the degree that Maggs was commissioned to do another series, this time featuring Spider-man, which starts on February 16. The Amazing Spider-Man will be transmitted at 4.20pm daily until March 24, and stars former EastEnders actress Anita Dobson, who plays Liz Allan, and William Dufris as Spider-Man. Brian May, Queen guitarist, provides the music for the series.

Purr-fect placement

Simon Henwood, creator and publisher of the reputedly controversial quarterly Purr, is due praise for getting accurate comics copy in a newspaper this month.

The Guardian's rapidly improving Friday tabloid billed Purr "Magazine of the Week" (10.2.95), with an insightful though recognisably Henwood-driven article published under the headline "Purr version" (geddit?).

Purr got a considerable shot in the arm from Robert Yates, the review's writer — a sage among journalists (or good mate of Purr person) who averted any charges of hype with the subtle use of quotes.

Talking about Purr's position in the market, Yates said: "It fits in, he [Simon Henwood] hopes, somewhere between "Granta and [Art Maus Spiegelman's] Raw", which at least suggests he recognises quality."

But voodoo lizard Dick Jude's quote took the biscuit with the quote: "It's a "phenomenon", reckons Dick Jude, manager of London's Forbidden Planet bookshop."

I AM a great Star Wars fan and I would like to know if there is a fan club or a Lucasfilm club. I know there is an American version, but is there a UK version?

No. The Official Star Wars Fan Club, run in the UK by LucasFilms themselves, ceased after the third film when interest began to wane. Everything reverted to the Californian HQ, where operations continue apace with the recently increased interest in the series.

I applied for the Bone PVC figure free offer advertised in America's Hero Magazine #14, August 1994.

I sent off for several Bone PVC figures and enclosed US dollars to cover postage.

I have received nothing in the last five months and wonder if you would be able to look into this matter for me. I would also be interested to know if other readers have experienced similar problems regarding this offer.

We print this both as a public warning and, hopefully, to encourage Hero to respond.

ANY chance of you knowing where Warren Ellis's and Phil Winslade's character Harlequin Bones has appeared since the Ammo Armageddon anthology released by Atomeka a couple of years ago. While we are on the subject of our Warren, when is Silencers coming out?

The Harlequin Bones story, originally published in A1 #6a, was reprinted in a recent Heavy Metal in full colour. The outstanding 100 pages which Warren wrote are currently in the limbo that is Tundra. Heavy Metal has offered to publish them, but, as Warren says, "Artist Phil Winslade has spent approximately the last twenty years attempting to finish the title Goddess.".

Silencers, hopefully, will be published this Autumn. But one of the hold-ups has been the necessity to find a new title as Marvel has recently discovered Caliber Press's four-issue Silencers mini.*

AT one time I considered myself up to date on all aspects of the Justice Society of America, but lately (following Zero Hour) I'm feeling confused!

I thought it would be worthwhile to register the latest position on each JSA member — with someone (!) filling in the gaps.

First of all, original JSA members:

1. Atom — died in Zero Hour.
2. Batman — died in Adventure.
3. Black Canary — died in ?
4. Dr Fate — died (?) in Fate 0.
5. Dr Midnite — died in Zero Hour.
6. Flash — retired in Zero Hour.
7. Green Lantern — young again! Now known as ? [Sentinel]
8. Hawkman — subsumed into new Hawkman (who subsumed all previous versions).
9. Hourman — died in Zero Hour.
10. Johnny Thunder/Thunderbolt — where are they?
11. Mr Terrific (my favourite!) — died in Justice League America.
12. Sandman — alive but very old.
13. Spectre - same as current?
14. Starman — retired in Zero Hour.
15. Superman — disappeared into another dimensional world via an antimatter universe (!) in Crisis on Infinite Earths.
16. Wildcat — still alive but recovering from a heart attack.
17. Wonder Woman — ascended to Mount Olympus in Crisis.

Newer JSA members:

1. Huntress — died in Crisis.
2. Power Girl — became a mother in Zero Hour. Any powers still?
3. Red Tornado — currently a member of Primal Force.
4. Robin — died in Crisis.
5. Star-Spangled Kid — became Skyman then died in Infinity Inc.

What a catalogue of disaster! I'm completely against DC's JSA decimation but it begs three questions:

a. Why did they decide to do this soon after awarding the JSA their own title (for the first time ever)?

b. Why have several members been allowed to linger on, in particular Sandman and Wildcat, when the other oldies have been wiped out?

c. Why make Alan Scott young again?

What is DC playing at — can anybody explain? I still care about the JSA, which is more than can be said of DC!

Presumably new young readers didn't take to old age heroes, so DC is tidying up shop — revitalising where possible and disgarding where not.

I am writing to you in the hope that you may be able to help with a question regading the supply of comics to dealers, shops, etc.

I am considering attending comic marts as a dealer and possibly opening a comic shop in the midlands area. My main problem is finding stock to sell (from a wholesaler). If you could give me information on places to obtain new comics, back issues and related mechandise I would be grateful.

Are there any distributors in the country for this, or must new comics and back issues be ordered direct from the publisher?

ADVANCE LISTINGS

READERS: You can use this Advance Listings section as an order form with your direct sale retailer or mail order supplier. Simply mark the items you require, preferably in red or blue pen or with a highlight marker. Then detach this section of the magazine and return it to your supplier, together with a note of your name, address and phone number and guarantee not missing any of the new titles being published. Certain retailers may not accept standing orders, so check with them first. Using this system will also help your supplier when ordering titles, to know which are presold.

All prices of US titles listed are in dollars. Where dollar and sterling prices (ie $1.50/£1) is stated, UK price is not the air-freighted import price, but instead denotes that the title will be nationally distributed approximately ten weeks later at a lower-than-airfreight price. Import prices are usually converted at a rate of $1.00 = 80p.

Shipping dates given are usually one week before airfreight copies arrive with your retailer/mail order supplier. All dates, prices and information are assumed to be accurate as provided by publishers. Late shipping, cancellations and changes in content will be detailed in future issues of Comics International*.*

Comics International Top 50: February 1995

WHILE the facing page's charts for the two major US distributors and their UK equivalents throw up interesting differences between buying trends in each country, to overview the total ordering, Comics International produces its own top fifty chart. The only combined chart in the industry.

Taking the order levels from each company and factoring in the size of each operation, we are able to produce a chart reflecting the entire month with far greater accuracy than those produced for the record, film or book industry.

This represents the trade orders for titles — meaning retailers believe they can sell the books they are ordering. Whether consumers choose to buy them is a different matter. (Key: re = re-entry; * irregular schedule)

Marvel Comics dropped 2% to 34% of the top 50, but still maintains a 4% lead over DC. The Hulk and The Fantastic Four are the only comics other than the X-Men or Spider-family of titles to chart for the company, but Fantastic Four is heading for its highest chart position next month with its milestone 400th issue.

The "new" X-books, led by Amazing X-Men, hold eight of the top ten spots and bolstered by Apocalypse Strike File coming in at 16th, there appears to be no slide in ordering for After Xavier's second issues. Aided by Amazing Spider-Man 400, only Spawn's presence stops Marvel totally dominating the top ten.

The After Xavier: The Age of Apocalypse titles will be reinforced yet more next month with X-Universe, a two-issue series dealing with the "other" non-mutant heroes who attempt to survive in this new alternate reality.

As storylines come together in the Spider-family, they are accompanied by a noticeable increase in Spider-Man's position in the charts. No less than three of the four regular titles shared the highest climber position (despite being expensive double-sized issues featuring cover enhancements). By comparison, the standard $1.50 Web of Spider-Man rose six places. Top Spider-book, the Parker-death Amazing Spider-Man #400, took the tenth spot in the charts ensuring that Marvel has — for the second consecutive month — 90% of the top 10.

Despite being unrelated to the current X-books crossover, mutant title Rogue #4 fared well. Rogue's concluding part to her mini-series moved back up the chart while X-Men 2099 #19 slipped yet again and is now out of the top 30.

The Hulk is holding its audience well and, despite being a non-mover this month, has the distinction of being Marvel's most successful single non-mutant character outside of Spider-Man.

DC Comics has a 30% share of the top 50, a decrease on previous months despite increases in position for the Superman family of titles, Green Lantern, Catwoman and — finally — The Sandman. Gaiman's Sandman has moved up three places, entering the top 40 for the first time.

Renewed interest in The Flash has ensured that his milestone 100th issue is a high new entry for DC. In at 33rd, the Mark Waid written series has mirrored The Hulk, rising through word-of-mouth praising both solid story and artwork. However, DC's two Flash spin-off series Impulse and Argus both failed to chart with their first issues.

Action Comics stayed put while Superman, Man of Steel and Adventures of Superman all rose, presumably in anticipation of Superman #100's Death of Clark Kent opener. Expect Superman #100 to be the highest placing Super-book since the Superman/Doomsday: Hunter/Prey mini-series, last year.

Batbooks had an unusual month this time, with Detective Comics and Catwoman moving up the charts, Robin remaining steady at 34th and the others dropping, with the most notable being Shadow of the Bat, taking the biggest dropper award.

Image Comics 26% showing in the chart is another rise of 4% on last month, but of the 13 titles that charted from the company, nine of them feature outside of the top 20.

Knightmare Tales#1, Union Volume 2 #1, Vampirella/Shadowhawk, Chapel #1 and Prophet Vol 2 #1 (although not strictly a new entry as there was no break between volumes 1 and 2) all placed, but only the fan appeal of Stephen Platt on Prophet is likely to keep that title in the 50. The other ongoing titles will find it difficult to stay in the higher chart.

WildC.A.T.s, Cyberforce, Wetworks and Backlash all either held ground or slipped marginally in the charts. WildC.A.T.s remained constant and news that creator Jim Lee is returning to comics in the autumn for an X-Men/WildC.A.T.s three-issue crossover looks sure to rekindle interest in a title that once was a certainty for the top 10.

Cyberforce comes back into the chart after a skip month, but at #31 it is Marc Silvestri's lowest ranking with his lead title.

Todd McFarlane is back on the up. Spawn moved back up two places at the expense of the three poorer selling X-titles. But the After-X crossover has kept the number one Image comic down and Spawn has to be content with placing at 6th. Todd's other comic, the Gaiman & Capullo Angela, concludes her healthy mini-series with a drop of only one place to 12th.

Dark Horse: Star Wars: Tales of the Jedi — the Dark Lords of the Sith #5 moved back up the chart, as did Star Wars: Dark Empire II #3, further reinforcing the popularity of the Star Wars spin-offs. Dark Empire could be the biggest selling Dark Horse comic in the company's history, having already secured the biggest selling media-related comic of 1994.

Dark Horse's psychotic superhero The Mask, who took the film world by storm in 1994, has not repeated its success in comics and the first issue of the ongoing Mask series failed to chart in the 50, coming in at #66.

Chaos Comics: Lady Death: Between Heaven & Hell #1 has burst into the charts and is a new entry at #13. This makes it the highest placing comic from any company outside of Marvel, DC and Image since Defiant's Warriors of Plasm #1. Lady Death's rise has been meteoric and this mini-series looks set to be the biggest hit for the company.

Harris: Vengeance of Vampirella has broken into the charts and with the added attraction of the Vampirella/Shadowhawk: Creatures of the Night two issue cross-company team-up, Harris has its biggest market share since its formation.

INTRODUCING MEGA-CITY MAIL-ORDER

Welcome to MEGA-CITY MAIL-ORDER, the most comprehensive and reliable mail-order service in the UK.

Mega-City have been supplying comics by mail since 1981, and have been prominent advertisers in both comic publications, and mainstream magazines throughout this time. Our shop in Camden Town (the largest comic shop in North London) was opened in 1987, and provides personal callers with the most comprehensive range of comics and graphic novels in the UK, all at ridiculously low prices. We are open 7 days a week, including most Bank Holidays, so you have no excuse not to pay us a visit!

Here are some of the specialist services that we offer:

SHOP RESERVATIONS (THE PULL & HOLD SERVICE)
If you are a shop customer, but can't make it down every week, or you are worried about missing new titles, then our PULL & HOLD SERVICE is for you. Simply provide us with a list of titles that you would like reserved, and we'll have them ready for your collection, individually bagged, when you call.

If you prefer to have your new comics mailed direct to your door, our Standing Order or Advance Order service is ideal:

STANDING ORDER SERVICE
The standing order service is designed as an easy way to get all of the titles you collect on a regular monthly basis, without the hassle of filling in a monthly order form. With a Standing Order, we do all the work for you.
Quite simply, you provide us with a list of titles that you would like reserved on a regular basis, and they are systematically put away for you as the titles come into stock, and mailed out once or twice a month by fast, reliable parcel courier.

ADVANCE ORDERS
The advance order service provides a monthly, easy to use order form, allowing you to reserve future releases, one issue at a time. It is the most flexible way of ordering comics, and guarantees that you never miss another key issue. Along with your monthly list, we can also provide Previews magazine - a giant 200-300 page advance news magazine, to keep you tuned in to the latest info.

For an information pack containing the latest order forms, or any further information regarding the services we offer, please call and ask for the mail-order department.

Submitting to defeat

Comment by Derek Rattray, Edinburgh

I'VE just received what I gather to be my third "not-even-a-rejection-slip" from DC. What I mean by this is a slip which apologises for being unable to give my work any more than a "cursory look", due to a massive backlog of submissions.

I seem to remember a similar "not-even-a-rejection-slip" from Fleetway Editions fairly recently. Curiouser and curiouser.

At a time when the comics industry is supposedly in a state of crisis, when all the best creators are spreading themselves too thinly over a disproportionately large number of titles, you would think that major companies such as DC would search through their submission piles in the hope of finding the new Neil Gaiman.

Apparently not. Instead they claim to be turning prospective new creators away because they are finding themselves what essentially amounts to being "too busy".

Please.

Credit us with some intelligence, guys. If you give anybody's work a mere cursory look, it's because you don't like it, or don't believe that you will.

I don't object to my work being rejected, but I would prefer to be told that it is being rejected because somebody somewhere does not like it. I don't like being lied to.

While I am on my high horse (too busy to suffer from Vertigo, it seems), I might as well make another point: that of how submissions are to be made.

This applies to ALL companies, or at least those that try to be helpful by publishing submission guidelines. Dark Horse's is apparently the best of the aforementioned, giving a rough idea of how to set out scripts, etc., but it is lacking the same important detail that all the other guidelines are, the answer to the following question: How the hell is a "brief one page synopsis" supposed to be set out?!

I know how to set out scripts, I know how to write what I believe — and various others have informed me to be — good stories, ones which are definitely better than much which sees print on a regular basis, but I'll be damned if I know what format to use when I cut a story down to one page.

For example, do I simply give a brief suggestion of the main plot, excluding subplots however relevant they may be to the general construction of the story, or do I perhaps outline the plot, hinting at subplots and how they relate to the main story, or do I merely give you a taster of the story, and leave out enough detail to leave you begging for more, but how then do I show you the quality of my prose, the originality of my characters, the complex weave of life that goes together to make a story?

The ways of setting the "short" synopsis out are numerous, but which is the right one? How, without the appropriate information do we (unknown creators, that is) know which information you (publishing companies, that is) want to see?

Am I the only one who has this problem? I doubt it. It is quite probable that if there is a new Neil Gaiman, Alan Moore or Pete Milligan out there, he (or she) has been passed by because they have no idea how to set out the Brief Synopsis Thingy.

Remember the story about the guy who was brilliant at the brief synopsis and was all set up to write the script for what the company in question thought was going to be a smash, but he turned out to be useless when it came to writing scripts? The opposite is without a doubt true for some (maybe even many!) of the up and coming writers of tomorrow.

So, please, big companies everywhere — small ones too — tell us how to set out the story briefs you seem to insist on before even looking at scripts.

You could find the new genius who breathes life back into your company. That is, if you're not too busy...

Collecting comics for complete collections

Comment by Phil Tennant, Croydon, Surrey.

I read with interest John Newton's letter in Comics International #50 and while I agree with several of the points raised, I do have to disagree with one or two others.

I would agree that any comics company is a commercial venture, and therefore making money has to be first and foremost on the agenda. It is also a sad fact of life that good stories and/or artwork rarely guarantee good sales. Just look at Hellstorm, even The Incredible Hulk, a consistently well written and drawn title over the past few years which falls far short of X-titles and the Spider-Man family sales wise.

Marvels was an exception, an excellently produced comic which most shops severely underordered due to the high cover price, and hence is hard to get hold of. I missed issue 2, and just three weeks after its release paid £10 for it.

However, I would disagree with the sentiment that comics are not intended to be collected. If that is the case, why would Marvel produce five different covers for one comic, if readers were to buy one issue and then throw it away?

Why is there a comic mart in London every month for fans to obtain back issues? Why would fans go to a comic shop and pay artificially inflated prices for a comic which only came out two months ago, if they just intend to throw it away?

I've agreed that companies need to sell comics, and I'll take Mr Newton's word as a retailer that gimmick covers and multi cross-overs sell extra issues. But do these have to be at the expense of good story lines? I considered Operation: Galactic Storm a good storyline, intelligently told, with a real-ending. However Maximum Carnage was just Maximum Garbage, with no real point or outcome. These stories tend to promise a lot and deliver very little. Fatal Attractions was a good story with some real shock revelations. Wolverine loses his adamantium skeleton and Magneto has his mind destroyed. But you know old Maggie will be back sooner or later, and so will the adamantium skeleton, probably.

The point is, Marvel's strength used to be excellent stories, with the occasional gimmick cover or cross-over as a bonus. Now it seems to be the other way around.

Mr Newton does seem to have written his comment as a comic shop owner first, and a comic fan second, which is fair enough, we all have to make a living. But there are fans out here who would love Giant Sized X-Men #1 or Avengers #1, which can cost £120 and £1000 respectively, but can't afford them. We do not want these comics for financial gain, or to read and throw away, but to complete a collection. Nuff said.

Insulting your customers

Comment by Lando Preet, Wickham, Kent

I believe retailer John Newton's comments in Comics International #50 represent a lot of what is going wrong with today's comic industry.

To me, his letter reads, "I don't care what material is inside comics, as long as I make money on them." Okay, he is a retailer, selling comics is his bread and butter. But I feel his comments border on insulting his customers and every reader. He begins by stating "...comics are not to be collected. They are designed to be read and thrown away...". This is absurd. Today, far more people keep their comics than ever before, they don't dump them. DC, Marvel, Image, et al, know this, otherwise why produce a story lasting more than a single issue? I'd say Newton is slightly out of touch with his own customers. His main point is "...sales are great for me, it's great for comics in general...". Well, half right. Many punters equal high profits, but is it really good for the industry? That really depends on your point of view. I believe the true comic reader is often shafted by low quality comic books.

Newton continues on how crossovers boost sales. But what reader can recall the last decent crossover which didn't feel like a sales boosting gimmick?

Newton seems happy with the industry right now, with so many titles out there filling his pockets. Bored with comics? Not yet, just tired of all the crap available today and perhaps a little disappointed that someone who I buy my comics from doesn't give a damn as long as he fattens his wallet.

A bright looking future?

Comment by Mike Kidson, Liverpool

I'D agree with Peter Dolan (Comment, Comics International #51) that things are looking very interesting at Marvel — should that be Marvelution — right now.

During the last six months they've set up discrete groups of editors and titles; they've purchased Malibu Comics; they've begun to cancel low-selling books; now they've bought into the distribution network. I do believe I sense a new and very effective-looking marketing strategy being developed.

The first three measures appear to be designed to combat the unwieldiness which has been Marvel's besetting problem ever since Jim Shooter realised — at least fifteen years ago — that the concept of a coherent narrative "universe" is fine for a new publisher but unfeasible in the long term. Ever since Shooter abandoned the old Lee/Kirby notion of fully interlinked stories, titles and characterisations (older readers will recall the disappearance of referential captions in the early Eighties), Marvel has been floundering in search of a new direction.

Shooter's solution of emphasising production line methods and creating new titles was in line with 1980s consumer-oriented economics, but it had the disastrous results of alienating both creators and readers, and forcing Marvel into adopting expansionist policies in order to retain market share. The outcome has been the replacement of conceptual unwieldiness with the unsteady edifice of an eroded reader base being offered more and more product — and the defection of the "brat pack" to form Image may have been the straw to break the camel's back.

How do the company's recent moves seem planned to combat this situation? Firstly, the decentralisation of editorial responsibilities, replacing a loose, hierarchical management structure with editorial groups possessing absolute authority over clearly defined lists of titles, should in theory result in both an increase of productive efficiency and a greater concentration on creative content. The cancellation of low sellers should help to make this theory work in practice.

The current rationalisation of the most convoluted of all Marvel's properties, the X-books and Spider-books, should be considered as evidence both of a decision to create, in Peter's words, more "reader-friendly" comics for new young readers and of how efficiently the new management theory may work in practice.

The purchase of Malibu is, I suspect, a very shrewd method of expanding the reader base. Malibu's sales have not been exactly chartbusting, but what's significant is who buys their comics. Their Ultraverse and Bravura imprints were clearly intended to attract older readers by emulating the Marvel titles of the Seventies, with emphasis on characterisation, conceptual continuity and crossovers. This is not unique — all new companies in recent years have emulated the Marvel universe model — but Malibu, by employing old Marvel creators such as Steve Englehart, Steve Gerber, Mike Ploog and Barry Windsor-Smith, have been the company most likely to attract the other "Marvel defectors" of the Eighties, the audience.

By purchasing Malibu, Marvel is reclaiming what remains of its lost reader base, together with a strong group of properties designed to attract new mature readers.

To these plans for greater productive efficiency, expansion of the reader base and possibly a broad diversion of creative content into children's comics (Marvel) and adults' comics (Malibu), we can now add a move to assert control over distribution.

In the long term I can see no reason why Marvel should not achieve this. Of course they will not simply cut off supplies to Diamond and Capital; but they can decrease supplies, undercut their competitors on prices of "hot" titles, offer advantageous deals to retailers, increase promotion, and so on until they have built up a strong market and considerably eroded their reliance on the established retailers without resorting to excessively hostile measures.

Yes, I'd say the future is looking pretty bright — for Marvel. Is it looking bright for anyone else? The already harassed retail network looks set to be the battleground for the struggle for distributor control.

DC, having been emulating Marvel's expansionist policies for over a decade, is going to have to devise a restructuring strategy of its own pretty fast if they want to remain major players. Smaller publishers may in the long term benefit from increased value to Capital and Diamond as alternatives to Marvel, although many are likely to be swamped during this ensuing struggle.

Peter Dolan reckons that readers are going to benefit. But as Marvel's recent moves seem to have more to do with efficiency and creative rationalisation than with quality, I'd say that remains to be seen.

Setting the record straight

Comment by John Ridgway, Bolton, Lancashire

COMICS International #51 carried a letter from David Lloyd concerning the activities of a "Mr. Valentine" and artwork returns from Fleetway.

The letter may have given the impression that my artwork was deliberately given to Mr Valentine as a result of me being unable or unwilling to collect it. This is not correct, and, knowing David to be one of the most honest and sincere people in this (or any other) industry, I sincerely apologise if I misled David over this, or if his letter was unclear on this point.

The full facts regarding the return of my artwork are these: Sometime last year I received a letter from Fleetway saying that large quantities of artwork were to be cleared, and once it had been sorted could I arrange to collect it.

As I live near Manchester and it was clearly inconvenient for me to collect it, I spoke to Steve McManus in the 2000AD office and he agreed that the artwork should be returned.

Several weeks later I received another letter from Fleetway stating that the artwork was now sorted and could I arrange to collect it — or have someone collect it for me — the artwork would otherwise be "disposed of". On speaking to the person concerned I was informed that my artwork could be returned by post but I would have to pay the postage cost (estimated at £50) as there were several bulky packages; most of my work is on Academy Line Board or CS10. I again spoke to the 2000AD office and they agreed to return my artwork free of charge.

The packages of artwork duly arrived, but when I unpacked them I found that they were incomplete. Two Judge Dredd stories — The Raggedy Man and Twister — were drawn partly in colour, partly in black and white. I found that only the black and white portions had been returned.

These two stories have an historical value in that Raggedy Man featured the first full-colour centrespreads for 2000AD, and Twister contained the first full-colour episode.

I spoke to Alan McKenzie about the missing artwork and he promised to try to get it returned to me. In fact, I spoke to him several times about return of this artwork but it did not arrive. Then, reading an ad in 2000AD I found that Judge Dredd artwork by John Ridgway was for sale. I spoke to the dealer who told me he had recognised this piece of artwork which had been unidentified amongst material obtained by Mr Valentine from Fleetway.

Shortly after, I received a phone call from Mr Valentine to say that he would have the artwork returned.

Immediately after Mr Valentine's call, I had a call from Fleetway's Gil Page who assured me that Mr Valentine had been acting as an agent for artists, but Fleetway would now be returning artwork only to the artists supplying the work. This is as much to protect Fleetway as the artists. I have no reason, whatsoever, to doubt Mr Page. Please note that the above had no bearing on the court case concerning Mr Valentine.

Defending Bill Valentine

Comment by P. J. Smith, Nottingham

AFTER reading David Lloyd's letter in last month's Comics International Comment section about B & P Valentine, I thought I'd better write in support of Bill Valentine.

I have been dealing with Bill for a year or so now and have no complaints about him or his dealings and service. In fact I'd go as far to say he is one of the nicest people I have dealt with over the last twenty or so years of collecting comics and comic art.

Also I'd like to add that, far from hiding the case from regular customers, he told me himself about what happened and the outcome of the trial.

It seems to me, that a lot of noise is being made by David Lloyd over three pages of artwork that have been returned after the mistake was discovered. I also believe that David Lloyd should have checked all of his so-called "facts" before putting pen to paper.

His letter wouldn't have looked out of place in The Sun, where such sensationalism belongs.

I will continue to deal with Bill, and hope that other customers of his will do also.

It was good to see Fleetway admit their mistakes in selling artwork to Bill that shouldn't have been sold (I was the third party who received the page of John Ridgway's artwork. It came to me marked by Fleetway as "Artist Unknown". After Bill rang me, the page was returned to John.)

With David Lloyd admitting to entrapment and not wanting "outsiders" in "Our Business", he has shown that he and his like-minded friends want to control the comics industry for themselves!

I now hope that David doesn't have any skeletons in his closet and that some body drags his name through the mud and try and ruin his business, like he seems to be doing to Bill Valentine.

Response to Gil Page

Comment by David Lloyd, Brighton, East Sussex

RE: My report of last issue and Gil Page's response. To begin with, I'm aware of the circumstances surrounding the progress of John Ridgway's art into the hands of the "Valentines" — I'd spoken to John before I wrote the report. The fact remains that John's failure to pick up his art from Fleetway's offices left it victim to the fate Gil Page describes.

The point is, this sort of thing just shouldn't happen. Artwork should be returned by the publisher after it's used. That's the natural obligation any publisher should meet if they operate a policy of returning artwork to creators, as Fleetway claims to.

But there's another question to ask about the artwork Fleetway gave to the "Valentines". In his letter, Gil Page states "Any dealings with the "Valentines" by Fleetway have been conducted with the full and open knowledge of any artists and/or their representatives concerned.". And, earlier, "Fleetway cannot supply artwork to any third party without written permission for it to be sold, so that the proceeds can either be passed on to the artist or a proportion donated to charity.". If this is the case, why is it that Dave Gibbons, Steve Dillon, John McCrea, Cam Kennedy, Brendan McCarthy and Paul Neary — all represented in the Fleetway package — hadn't been told their work was being given to the "Valentines"?

I've heard that Bellardinelli's work was handed over to the "Valentines" with a promise of a percentage of its sales. Why wasn't the same treatment afforded to the artists I've listed above?

One last thing: As I said in my report, Bryan Talbot luckily avoided contributing to the "Valentines" booty at the time Glenn and I got caught.

But just after Christmas I got a call from Bryan, who'd just completed clearing out some old paperwork. He'd discovered an old 'Friends of Northumbria Association' letter which he had responded to and answered with a piece of artwork!

Yes, there's no escape from the multi-faceted criminal world of the "Valentines". Who knows what they'll call themselves next?

Ever wished you could afford to advertise in one of the top three selling titles in UK comic shops?

YOU CAN! Everybody knows that Spawn and the X-Men are the top-selling monthlies in most UK comic shops. But do you know what is third? According to our surveys, over the last two years it has consistently been Comics International.

On average, comic shops get though over 100 copies every month. And that excludes quantities distributed by mail order & mart dealers, export copies, or such professional organisations as the Comics Creators Guild & The Cartoonists Club of Great Britain.

Now you know why we over 90% of our advertisers continue every issue. It works.

We've never sold space, we don't make deals or special offers (not even with editorial contributors!). If you want to advertise, the details are on page two.

But you'll have to call us, we don't hard sell because we don't need to. Phone us any time between 10.30am and 6.00pm Monday to Friday to talk about advertising. We'll tell you our sales levels (not just our print run or "circulation"), returns levels, export, our comic shop and newsagent ratio, just about everything a potential advertiser could want to know.

But don't ask for the advertising department. We don't have one because we're not trying to sell you anything.

REVIEWS

It is the intention of Comics International to help comics readers keep abreast of the entire range of titles currently available through direct sale specialist shops, good newsagents and mail order companies. Few retailers allow titles in stock to be read before choosing purchases; Comics International*'s reviews are designed to counter this and draw readers' attention to comics they might otherwise ignore. Naturally, this section should be of even greater benefit to readers who rely solely on mail order, as they can only judge the quality of a new title after purchase.*

Review codes: General competitive performance of a title is measured on a scale of 1 to 10. A specific issue's quality, as measured against previous issues: <- - -> to <+ + +>.

Two ratings are used for the sake of detailed and fair coverage. The number following each review (on a scale of 1 to 10) is a quality comparison with similar titles currently being published. We make no attempt to compare Bone to X-Men*, but review each within the context of its own genre.*

The individual issue is also rated within the confines of its previous issues. Hence a comparatively dull title may get a low number but a high rating for the specific issue reviewed (ranging from <-> to <+ + +> if there has been a notable improvement.

Reviews Editor: Sarah Bolesworth

Aquaman 5

by David & Calafiore

<- +> Aqualad prepares for a mysterious mission — and, as he searches for one relative and finds another, Aquaman gets a new outfit. Another excellent Peter David script, though still lacking the sparkle of his other work, and the artwork is better than the regular team's. (NL) 6

Babylon 5 #1

by Straczynski & Netzer

Expanding on events from the TV series, Commander Sinclair's mysterious link to the alien Minbari race is revealed — and that's about all... The run-of-the-mill script and art — though there are some excellent Sinclair likenesses — makes this edition for the devoted fan only. (NL) 4

Bob, the Galactic Bum 1 (of 4)

by Grant + Wagner & Ezquerra

So maybe the philosophical, polysyllabic, top-hatted W C Fields bum with his dim-witted and ever-hungry companion is not exactly the most novel comedic idea; but with charming scripting, a little harmless fun at Chazza the idiot Prince's expense, and top-notch Ezquerra art, this just has to work! Hasn't it? (FPB) 8

Fate 3

by Moore & Williams

The heir to Dr Fate's legacy fights interdimensional demons while his ex-wife becomes a transdimensional rift. Unfortunately, it is really hard to wade through. (NL) 2

Flash 99

by Waid & Pacheco + Larroca

<+ +> Wally's seen the future and doesn't figure in it. He thought he could change that situation but, this issue, he realises that his destiny can't be altered. Reaching ultimate speed, he erupts in a burst of light. Mark Waid once more delivers the goods while the art team provides solid powerful visuals. (SB) 10

by Ushaw & Pleece

One of the best openings to a comic this year, with a surreal, supernatural Scot busting a drugs shipment and (it gets better) exploring the implications of a gangster bringing down his own organisation with magic. One of the bright new stars of Vertigo, Mobfire is kicking butt and getting people to sit up and take notice — where other Vertigo mini-series have seemed content merely to get published. Mobfire looks as if it's going to force itself into an ongoing series. (RJJ) 8

Modesty Blaise

by O'Donnell & Giordano

The biggest rip-off in quite a while, an uninspired adaptation of the first Modesty Blaise novel (which I once found in a bargain box for 50p), plus fairly routine Giordano art defaced by horrendous colouring. I can't believe I paid £14 for this. (FPB) 2

The Ray 9

by Priest & Porter

<+ -> The Ray's got a crush on Black Canary, and just when he thinks he's having one of those days where everything goes right, things start to go wrong. Priest's insight into teenagers' thoughts and emotions is superb, and Howard Porter is coming along in leaps and bounds. (SB) 7

Shade 56

by Millgan & Buckingham + Lark

<+> Snoop Andrea Murdoch continues to investigate Shade while he has difficulty bringing up his rapidly ageing son. After a few dull issues, we're back on track with lots of intriguing mysteries. And it's almost impossible to detect the two separate pencillers at work here. (NL) 6

Spectre 27

by Ostrander & Mandrake

<+> Jim Corrigan, the Spectre, becomes increasingly uncontrollable by issue's end, and this time he goes over the top with two thieves. Meanwhile, the evil Azmodus begins his onslaught against the Spectre, stealing the body of Corrigan's dead friend. (SB) 10

Starman 4

by Robinson & Harris

<+> The reluctant Starman, the wonderful Shade, a poster and a Hawaiian shirt feature in an excellent scene-setter for things to come. This creative team is on a real roll in what seems the best book to come out of Zero Hour. (MB) 9

Starman 5

by Robinson & Harris

<+ +> Jack, the current yet unwilling Starman, wakes up to find himself in a dream where his dead brother, the previous Starman, is with him once more. They pick up where they left off, arguing, but by the time Jack's brother has to leave things are a little different. Robinson is producing outstanding work here, while Harris turns in his finest art. His depiction of facial expressions is truly phenomenal. (SB) 10

<+ -> Not a dream, not a hoax. Starman versus Starman. Except what we have here is Jack Knight fighting and deliberating with his dead brother, David. The entire book is in black and white except for the images of the deceased Starman, vividly coloured to emphasise contrast. This is an uplifting story, delving into Jack's uncertainty about possessing the hero mantle, and sows more seeds about the future of DC's newest superhero. (PH) 10

by Jurgens & Rubinstein

<+> Cat Grant goes to visit the Toyman, imprisoned for the murder of her son, Adam. We learn just what turned Toyman from a second-rate villain into a cold-blooded killer. Jurgens' scripting is as fine as ever, but the pencils appear somewhat rushed in this issue. (SB) 7

Wonder Woman 95

by Loebs & Deodato Jr

<+> There's a new Wonder Woman in town, and she's nothing like Diana; quite the opposite, in fact. The original WW is working as a private detective with a new costume and — for some reason — a new hairdo. Loebs has breathed fresh life into the title, aided by Mike Deodato Jr, whose artwork leaves me breathless. (SB) 10

by Rozum & Birch.

<-> I would advise anyone with child or thinking of having children to avoid the first few pages of this book. I mean, [Vertigo Editor] Karen Berger would probably have difficulty passing some of the sick and twisted bits of Xombie if it was published by Vertigo... Perhaps Morrison should bring his Invisibles series to Milestone! Certainly the surreal characters in Xombie could never have been envisaged without Morrison's Doom Patrol, but this title has its own special charm, telling horror tales with a lightness not reflected in the dark and angular artwork. (RJJ) 8

MARVEL COMICS

Astonishing X-Men 1

by Lobdell & Madureira

The Age of Apocalypse kicks in: We are introduced to Magneto's X-Men as Bishop informs the magnetic one that reality is all wrong. This is a lot better than I expected it to be, and executed with obvious enthusiasm by the creators. (NL) 8

Bishop 3

by Ostrander & Pacheco

As in the first and second issues, Bishop plays a cat-and-mouse game with Mountjoy. But Ostrander pulls off an excellent twist a few pages in and uses it throughout to briefly explore Bishop's past — all expertly handled by the art team. (NL) 7

Captain America 437

by Gruenwald & Hoover + Bulanadi

<-> Cap lies dying in the medical room of Stark Enterprises while Tony Stark battles to save his life. During all this, Cap has a freaky flashback session to the days when Bucky was still with us (and the title was better). Hoover's visuals are adequate, with the occasional bout of inspiration, but writer Gruenwald really should bow out, now. (SB) 5

Clandestine 5

by Davis + Farmer

<+ -> Newly reunited with his two youngest children, Adam Destine recounts the story of his past, telling how he fought in the Crusades and gained his powers. It's a shame Davis has quit, because this is a joy from cover to cover, with neither the excellent script nor glorious art gaining the advantage. (NL) 9

Clandestine 6

by Davis w/Farmer

<+ -> Rory runs away with his little sister in search of the bright lights and supertypes of New York. The rest of the Clan weave intricate subplots — that will never be tied up in Davis's reign — and one group of villains from the first story arc reappears with a splendour that only Alan Davis can convey. (PH) 9

Conan the Adventurer 10

by Thomas & Kayanan

<- +> Roy Thomas continues regenerating the character he helped conceive for comics. Kayanan's art is laudable, but there are signs that he is starting to rush his work and we are forced to put up with a back-up strip that sadly pales by comparison with the lead feature. (SB) 6

Elektra: Root of Evil 1

by Chichester & McDaniel + Collazo

The problem with the new Elektra series is that Chichester just plays with the established character, having her react only physically to her surroundings, where the original Miller treatment had more of a psychological twist. McDaniel's Miller-inspired art is weakened by Extreme-style characters. That's not to say that this comic doesn't have some fine moments: Elektra as a child in winter and even Nick Fury are handled well. But the book is far more image than substance, and that's a shame. (RJJ) 6

Force Works 9

by Abnett + Lanning & Calafiore

<+> The highlight here is the back-up strip, in which the team mourns the loss of Wonder Man and the mysterious Century reveals more secrets about his past. Abnett and Lanning are finally doing something positive with what was once the West Coast Avengers — and interim penciller Jim Calafiore is stunning. (SB) 8

Gambit & The X-Ternals 1

by Nicieza & Daniel + Conrad

<+> Robin Hood, Robin Hood, riding

through the Glen... A variety of X-characters with spanking new costumes play merry men to Gambit as this ex-X-Force runs around fighting people. It would be that simple if it weren't for some of the better character development of long-serving X-support character, Lila Cheney, who uses her powers for the "first" time in a sequence that's exceptional in this otherwise formulaic episode. (RJJ) 6

Generation X 4

by Lobdell & Bachalo

<+> Excellent one-parter as half the team apparently stumble across a mutant holding hostages. But, of course, it's not quite as clear-cut as that. Lobdell's transformation from out-of-depth hack to character-writer supreme has been astounding. Meanwhile, Bachalo merely confirms his status as the best artist in comics, bar none. This is spoilt only by the thought of another X-over, set to intervene for the next four months. (MB) 10

Generation NeXt 1

by Lobdell & Bachalo

<+ -> The problem with such devastatingly good introduction issues is that the storyline had to become embroiled in the After Xavier crossover, so it was nice to see a similar theme continued despite the vastly different world in which these mutants live. In this alternative reality, Generation NeXt are still very much Generation X, except they are tutored by the psychotic husband-and-wife team of Colossus and Kitty Pryde, both of whom are about as calm and collected as Sabretooth. Bachalo draws possibly the definitive Colossus, and the book virtually stands up on its own, without all the crossovers. (PH) 9

Hulk 426

by David & Sharp + Riggs

<- +> Picking up from last issue's abrupt ending, we learn the final fates of Betty and the Pantheon members, as Doc Samson struggles to re-integrate the Hulk's personas while fending off S.H.I.E.L.D. A rather strange issue, resolving some subplots while complicating others, but still one of Marvel's best. (NL) 7

by David & Sharp + Riggs

<+ -> Comparing the excellent Sharp & Neary cover art to the bland Sharp & Riggs interior art, you would think that two different Liam Sharps are responsible. He's taking short cuts to ensure a monthly schedule, and the formulaic style of two splash pages and some talking heads could prove irritating. Storywise, Peter David turns his attention to the Hulk (and six months have elapsed since issue 428), working for an old friend at an Everglades garage and destined for a showdown with the Man-Thing — who, it seems, has an empathic link with an aged murderer. Treading water. (PH) 6

<+ +> A perverted old man is going around killing young boys and dumping their bodies in the Everglades. Luckily, Hulk and Betty have relocated and Peter David's tale is one of his best to date. The scenario he has set up for next few issues seems promising, as does Liam Sharp's artwork, which I'm finally happy with. The Man-Thing's presence adds incidental interest. (SB) 10

Spider-Man 56

Mackie & Lyle + Hanna

<-> I have nothing but praise for the creative team on this title, particularly Lyle's art. However (and the creative are not blame for this) the storyline is dire. Really dire. We've got countless Spidey-clones and now we've got a Gwen Stacy clone. It just kicks the excellent storyline recounting the death of Gwen Stacy into touch, and that's unforgivable. (SB) 5

Weapon X 1

by Hama & Kubert + various

<-> With the first issue of this series there are already multiple continuity problems. Logan grits his teeth and jumps at things, over things and through things, against robots, mutants, basically whatever Kuberts' hard-edged style can throw at him, and he fights them off. Considering Jean Grey is meant to be the co-star, she gets very little coverage. And as for Logan providing a solution to the crisis? No, he's stumped. The use of Brian Braddock is both unexpected and logical — the perfect blend. (RJJ) 7

What If? 71

by Edginton & Stroman + Stull

<-> What if the Gamma Bombs had spawned a thousand Hulks? Xenophobia away... you see, the US military dropped gamma bombs on Hiroshima and Nagasaki in the Second World War, turning all Japanese into American-hating Hulk-creatures — and ignoring much Marvel continuity. Stroman, after the Tribe fiasco, must be desperate for some cash, and it looks as if he spent all of — oh, a few days sketching this book. A nice original concept, but manically patriotic and poorly followed through. (RJJ) 2

X-Man 1

by Loeb & Skroce

X-man has escaped from the gene banks and joined up with a small group of mutant freedom fighters. The 20-year-old Nate is the son of Cyclops as he should be, without the techno-organic infection — and he's excellent. The superb creative team, especially Skroce, make this a title I'll be sorry to see go at the end of Age of Apocalypse. (NL) 7

X-Men Chronicles

by Mackie & Dodson + Janson

<-> Mackie writes the book, so we're guaranteed an appearance of Candra. Although purporting to tell the history of the Alter-XX-Men, this book does no such thing, but just snatches a day in the life of these X-Men a few years ago. Someone should also tell Mackie that the Horseman of the Apocalypse is a Biblical reference, and calling this universe's version War, Death, Candra, Gideon and Sabretooth doesn't really work. However the art, while often blocky, conveys emotion well — a good counterbalance given the writing's tendency to evolve into a strange amalgam of Sienkiewicz and Hughes' style... (RJJ) 4

A distorted retelling of Uncanny X-Men 1, with Magneto leading the fledgling team against Apocalypse and his Horsemen of the Apocalypse. The dialogue is overly melodramatic and fails to convey the meat this story should have had. A pointless experiment in retroactive continuity that could easily have been told in three pages, rather than 40. The artwork is quite dreadful, but that's down to Klaus Janson's heavy-handed inking. (PH) 2 going on. The core X-characters you can follow, but the countless supporting cast and villains are introduced too quickly and then killed off. Moore scripts as well as ever and Lim's art is better than it's been of late. (SB) 7

INDEPENDENTS

Angry Christ Comix

by Linsner; Sirius

Collecting all of Linsner's Cry for Dawn work, plus an unpublished item meant for the never realised Cry for Dawn #11, this exceptional trade paperback shows the depth of his talent and the validity of his basic belief that if you, as an artist, have to confront demons, "you'd better go all the way". (FPB) 10

Ash 2

by Quesada & Palmiotti; Event

<+> This superhero twist with super-fireman retains some of the fun from the first issue, and the art is better, especially with the Mike Mignola poster. However, the book is often caught up in its own cliches, unable to escape the trappings of the original superhero stories that spawned it. (RJJ) 5

Biologic Show 1

by Columbia; Fantagraphics Books

<+> Disturbing and surreal, a darker look at themes explored by Jim Woodring. Dismembering, mutation and sexual perversion are all seemingly normal to two children. Bleak, miserable but with a cartoony art style that provides twisted hope, Biologic Show doesn't say much, what it does say makes interesting reading. (RJJ) 8

Bloodchilde 1

by Perozich & Cariello; Millenium

A vampire tale very much in the Lestat mould, yet by no means a lifeless swipe: Faye Perozich, who adapted the Ann Rice character for comics, has clearly metabolised its poetic power, producing a sad and unsettling story of death and love (in that order) with great artwork by new boy Cariello. (FPB) 9

Bone 17

by Jeff Smith; Cartoon Books

<-> Two revelations: The first, that the hooded one is only a servant of a greater evil is genuinely surprising; but the second — the real origin of Thorn, although well handled, is anything but surprising. I'm afraid we'd all seen it coming. Not the most convincing issue so far. (FPB) 9

Bloodshot 27

by VanHook & Chen + Giordano; Valiant / Acclaim

<+> After being set up, Bloodshot is captured by the Musashi Corporation, which then implants the mind of one of its founders in his head. He turns into a complete nutter who thinks about killing people all the time — unless he's thinking about killing people, of course. (SB) 8

'Breed II #3

by Starlin; Malibu / Bravura

<+> His 'Breed sister dead, Raymond Stoner is alone and on the run from the rest of his kind. Starlin provides some of his finest artwork to date this issue in a series that, unusually for a sequel, outclasses its predecessor. (SB) 9

The Dark 1

by Naftali & Lidstone; August

The Dark finally regains his memory as this highly impressive series is relaunched, back in colour and looking better than ever. Meanwhile, the mystery surrounding the Dark's blood continues as a woman he gave a blood transfusion to begins to behave oddly. Naftali's script rivals that of many mainstream comics, while Lidstone's pencils are clear and refreshingly different to the Image style that currently dominates the industry. (SB) 9

Godwheel 0

by Dank + Ulm & Pacella; Malibu

Not a bad job of merging some immortals from various Ultraverse titles into a coherent and novel pagan hierarchy; otherwise, this story leaves to much to be explained in the regular titles. Pacella graduates from swiping Liefeld to swiping Perez: obviously a step forward. (FPB) 6

Godwheel 1

by Hudnall & Frank + Lopresti + Rubinstein; Malibu

<+> Argus takes on the Ultras and continues his quest to obtain the keys to the Crucible of Life, aided by Mantra. Gary Frank's half of the issue is the better of the two — particularly his Mantra — but that's not to slight the second half by Lopresti, which is almost as good... (SB) 7

Harbinger 40

by VanHook & Ross; Valiant

<-> Scratchy and unrefined... That about sums up both the art and the script on this issue. Once Valiant's premier title, this needs putting out of its misery, and quickly. The Harbinger is sent out to kill some members of the Harbinger team and, despite his mighty powers, fails. (SB) 3

Ippongi Bang's Canvas Diary

by Bang; Antartic

Episodes from a Japanese comic studio, told by its chief, a young lady with the improbable name of Ippongi Bang. While not without charm, the conventions of Japanese humour — big distorted mouths and screeching bold type — are offputting to casual readers. Strictly for buffs. (FPB) 6

Legend of Supreme 1

by Giffen + Fleming & Johnson; Image

In what is one of the most impressive Image titles thus far, we look back at what may (or may not) be Supreme's origin and get an insight into his increasingly unstable personality. The character has actually piqued my interest now, and Giffen and Fleming's plot and dialogue is second to none. Johnson visuals seem clean and easy to follow. (SB) 9

Mantra 17

by Barr & Armstrong; Ultraverse

<-> Eden Blake is slowly dying in Lukasz's mind. She is resigned — but he, who loves her, is not and wants to do something about it. This is a wildly uneven issue, ill-drawn and disgracefully sketchy in parts; but it never takes its eye from its oddly touching subject, and manages to deliver a nasty climactic surprise. (FPB) 7

by Kieth w/Loebs; Image

<+ -> This issue there is no Maxx at all; the focus is on Sarah and her dysfunctional family, particularly her senile and hallucinating grandfather. Kieth's whole anarchistic system of values is in the conclusion, in which the confused old man is set free to follow his ghosts. A poetic masterpiece. (FPB) 10

Mr Hero, The Newmatic Man 1

by Vance & Slampyak; Tekno

A scatter-brained teenager and her friend unearth and re-assemble what they think is a Victorian automaton, but actually is an alien steam-powered heroic robot. A very good debut, with passable story and art. But the hero may prove too quaint to sustain a regular series. (NL) 6

<-> McKie's colouring skills stand out most in this generally uninspiring tale of steam robot derring-do. Too much fight, not enough elaboration of the Mr Hero concept that could have made this comic a winner. The only development effected — and that's of another personality — has the potential to be abused by the writer. The art is substandard, and even the Talbot Teknophage pages are less powerful than in previous launches. Not up to the hype. (RJJ) 3

by Chaykin; Malibu/Bravura

<+> In this one-shot, the star of the Bravura line looks at the nature of super-powers, fanatical religion and what happens when entities collide with great force. Far from the traditional fight scene, this has charm, justification and reads well. Chaykin's angular style portrays action better than most, and his work here definitely deserves re-reading. (RJJ) 8

Prime 18

by Jones + Strazewski & Jarvinen Malibu/Ultraverse

<+ -> Prime's new sidekick, Turbo Charge, saves the day as Prime tries to answer some tricky questions from the world's media. The writing continues to impress and while the book needs a regular artist, fill-in Kirk Jarvinen is refreshing — indeed, a regular stint wouldn't go amiss. (SB) 8

Rai 32

by Shiller & Royle + Ramos; Valiant

<-> The removal of the last creative team quickly put a stop to what seemed to be a promising title. We're now subjected to unknowns and while Royle shows signs of potential, the same cannot be said of the writer. (SB) 4

Razor: Burn 1

by Hartsoe w/Taylor; London Night

Razor is a tad like Catwoman, only she's not bound by the Comics Code. Both her actions and costume make this more than clear. She's now got a rival named Stryke, who is even more wicked than she is, so a duel is inevitable. Nice artwork, although the plot needs more thought. (SB) 7

Rocketeer Adventure Magazine 3

by Stevens + various; Dark Horse

Cliff arrives in '30s Atlantic City just in time to prevent Lothar killing Orsino, but the vengeful giant can't be stopped so easily. Cue explanatory flashback sequence and white-knuckle showdown in the burning House of Death. Dave Stevens' meticulous storytelling weaves threads of love, guilt, tragedy and revenge; sex, danger, mystery and suspense; heroism, nostalgia, friendship and humour into a cloth-of-gold experience. Happily, this comic transcends the dilution of the Rocketeer myth seen in the film, and the last page will gladden the hearts of all Betty fans. An ongoing series is promised, albeit without Stevens — except as cover artist and advisor. Everything, as Goose might say, is jake! (AJP) 10

Rune 6

by Windsor-Smith w/Ulm; Malibu Ultraverse

<+> Despite (or possibly because of) being a rush job, this issue features the most attractive artwork yet — loose, open, almost airy. The story is little more than an excuse for Rune to fight Prime and Mantra (he wants her sword); and yet, unlike preceding issues, it left a good taste in my mouth. (FPB) 7

Seth Throb, Underground Artist 4

by Garcia; Slave Labor Graphics

A Prozac-addicted cartoonist and his friends are snowed in by a blizzard that disables his whole city; then the woman he loves dies suddenly. Graphically striking and emotionally involving, this features God Himself without making a mess of it, but errs with the story's one cliche, the sensitive, whiter-than-white lesbian. Why does this sort of comic always have to have a sensitive lesbian somewhere? If you have to, why not a gay man? (FPB) 7

Solution 15

by Hudnall & Dove; Malibu

<+ -> DropKick returns to the team, but he's not the man they used to know, and it's made worse when the team walk head-first into a trap. Hudnall provides an entertaining enough script here and guest penciller George Dove, while no John Statema, proves impressive. (SB) 8

Timewalker 6

by VanHook & Castrillo; Valiant

<+> Ivar the Timewalker arrives in the future Harbinger war. There are fascinating glimpses of the future versions of today's favourite characters — but better than that are the sensational pencils of Castrillo, a near-perfect John Byrne clone during his Fantastic Four days — and a rare treat indeed in the days of Jim Lee clones... It could almost be Byrne. (SB) 8

Torch of Liberty

by Byrne & Dwyer; Legend

It's 1953, and the Torch of Liberty teams up with Radio Girl to take on Russian Communists in an action-packed and comical adventure from Byrne and Dwyer, pulling out all the stops with some of their best work since Captain America. (SB) 8

Warrior Nun Areala 1

by Ben Dunn; Antarctic

As bad as it sounds, nuns in leather running around with visible nipples and dripping swords... The justification for this level of exploitation is very dodgy, and there really isn't much point to any of this, to be frank. Nice colours, but as for buying this comic regularly — well, I don't think I'd make a habit of it. (RJJ) 2

by Portacio; Image

<+> The Wetworks take on the WildC.A.T.s this issue, and a Portacio-drawn WildC.A.T.s team is a rare treat indeed. While clearly this title would sell on Portacio's work alone, it's refreshing to find that there's an intelligent, entertaining story too. (SB) 8

Wolf & Byrd, Counsellors of the Macabre 4

by Batton Lash; Exhibit A

The umpteenth re-visitation to the ancient comics battlefields of Fifties' horror, Fredric Wertham, EC gore and the McCarthy-ite Senate hearings. It's unfair to Wertham, though — whose recent death is mentioned here with undisguised glee — and tends to be somewhat uncritical in its views. But, as ever with this series, it remains enjoyably absurd. (FPB) 6

Xenozoic Tales 13

by Mark Schultz; Kitchen Sink

<+> Every once in a blue moon, a comics reader is rewarded with a new issue of this classic post-historic tale. Jack Tenrec skates around diplomacy here and masters its skills on a hunting trip, a trip that could easily spell his doom... As ever, the artwork is dark, finely detailed and utterly absorbing. And as ever, the writing falls short of the promise of the art, but its links to pulp fiction give it charms that make up for its shortcomings. (RJJ) 8

UK TITLES

Gon

by Masashi Tanaka; Equinox Manga

There's a lot of fuss nowadays about manga and anime, and what's obvious is that in Britain we see the best. Like American sitcoms, there's a lot more out there that is a lot worse than the stuff we see. So when something like Gon appears without a blare of publicity and sits on the shelf, a tiny dinosaur staring out at the public, it gets your attention. Gon is one of the finest examples of manga I've yet seen. Very, very detailed, no dialogue and soundless, it takes the concept of a small dinosaur with a unique ability to adapt to unfamiliar geographical conditions. Whether huddling with penguins or flying with eagles, Gon is at home in its environment. Charming, offensive, lovable, annoying — as long as the perfect execution continues, Gon could run and run. (RJJ) 10

Judge Dredd Megazine 73

by various; Fleetway

It's one of those all-new strips issues that make a good jumping-on point for new readers. In Skar there's a killer roaming Mega City One's streets — nice artwork, if a little muddy in places. Colin MacNeil's Maelstrom looks good, and I'm pleased it's been left in black and white — and the same applies to Transient 114. Shimura returns but is burdened by some dodgy artwork. There's a great one-off Anderson strip, well-painted and with an excellent ending: If you don't pass on your postcode in the Big Meg, you're fined! Brilliant idea... (SB) 8

Manga Heroes 1

by various; Manga Publishing

Anyone who thinks that manga means Japanese comics will have been confused by this first issue, a reprint of Dark Horse's adaptation of the Timecop movie. Relax — according to the editors, manga now means comics adaptations of films, videos and computer games. Which makes every major comics publisher a manga publisher... Oh, you want to know about the comic? It's quieter than the movie. (MK) 3

by various; D C Thomson

Traditional nursery comics like Tiny Tots may once have reflected the reality of middle-class life. Twinkle, which updates the old formula without altering it, is a bizarre piece of escapism with a noticeably consumerist message which I'd recommend to adults in search of something decidedly different — but I'm not sure I'd recommend it for children. <-> The first issues of 1995, and they're not very impressive. Run-of-the-mill Dredd, uninspired strips The Corps and Soul Gun Assassin and a confusing-to-newcomers Skizz are offputting — though Skizz is actually quite good and Timehouse has some amusing absurdities. (NL) 4

by various; Fleetway

<-> As usual, an excellent Dredd strip but the issue is let down by Shaky Kane's Soul Gun Assassin; however it is (thankfully) the final episode, this issue. Jim Baikie's Skizz III has lost its direction completely, whereas Peter Hogan and Tim Bollard's Timehouse never had a direction to lose. The highlight of the issue is Finn by Mills, Skinner and Sharp, who paints the series well. However, I'm told this was drawn in 1990 and was scheduled to run in the long-cancelled Crisis anthology title — hence the naked women and unusual page shapes. (SB) 6 dystopian future, very well-conceived — in particular in the notably successful use of verse in two of the items. Still too strong for my taste, but recommended to splatter fans. (FPB) 7

by Matthew Lawrenson 99 Thistlebury Ave, Newcastle, Staffs ST5 2LR; £1.35 inc.

It seems that the serious small press have little time for the likes of Matthew Lawrenson (or Steven (Phantom Bog Roller) Corps). You see, comics are for serious-minded people and AOTW, Lawrenson's parody of comics trade-papers is as serious as Daffy Duck. Put together on outdated equipment and full of quips about the industry (and including a fish with a full set of human teeth), it's difficult to understand why this is so little patronised; in being so satirical it mirrors the industry too well. Have a laugh at yourself and help Lawrenson continue this amusing fanzine. (PH) 9

Caption 16

Caption, 25 Hart Street, Oxford OX2 6BN; £1.25

The small-press networking 'zine is an excellent read these days. Its simple, attractive layout and well-ordered mix of reviews, interviews, strips, general articles and news looks very professional and is also pretty comprehensive — nowhere else have I seen such extensive coverage of the upcoming National Cartoon Month. (MK) 7

Dead Fly Pie 1

by various; £1.50; Walrus Press, 15 Roydene Rd, London SE18

The standard of small-press anthology titles is reaching previously unscaled heights these days, and the first issue of this title is an absolute delight. Six strips, all with masses of potential. Fare Stage is a brilliant tale of an old woman running for the bus, and would put Rick Geary to shame with its brilliant simplicity. String is a whimsical one-pager about a man made appropriately enough of string, and The New Adventures of PuddleBoy is one of the most bizarre strips I've seen since Weird City's Shroom. For a first issue, this is superb. (PH) 10

Defective Comics 90

by Glenn Cooper, 18 Fields Park, Newbridge, Gwent NP1 4NQ; 80p

Superhero-style anthology title in which a martial-arts babe defends her gargoyle son from a time-lost psychopathic team mate, while another hero seeks revenge in a Sixties' Marvel homage. Fun, but varying in quality. (NL) 5

Going to the Chapel 1

by Darren Powell, 5 Green Lane, Upper Gornal, Dudley DY13 1XG

Autobiographical tale of one man's descent into emotional confusion when he is invited to his first lover's wedding. The script, focusing on the history of their relationship, is etremely honest and handles the shifts in time-frames without causing any headaches. David Metcalfe's raw artwork works well with the plot, too. (NL) 7

Malus 1

by Chris Webster, 24 Rivington St. London EC24 3DU; £1.25

Chris's recent work for manga publishers appears to have influenced the scripting and layouts in this twisted tale of super-berserkers in a corporate world. The idea is decades old, but the almost viciously scratchy linework is powerful, indefinably disturbing and all the artist's own. Excellent work from a future star. (MK) 9

by G S Rider; GSR Comics

Self-published Gary Rider has invested a lot of time and money on the production values of this book, and it seems little time on the story. The artwork is adequate and Rider may well find he has a future in that direction alone. But the dialogue is very stunted, and the story introduces too many characters and too little characterisation. Rider should have taken a leaf our of Rol Hirst's book and produced this cheaply rather than believing that small press fans want high production values. (PH) 4

Sweeny Boys C

by Richard Smith, 35 Devonshire Place, Brighton B22 1QB; £1.00

Captain Dolphin meets John Thaw and Dennis Waterman. With an art style ripped off from colleague Ralph Kidson, Smith has created an excellent send-up of the Seventies cop show. Funny at first, but wears thin towards the end. (NL) 7

Unskinny 4 & 5

by Lucy Sweet, 106 Brighton Grove, Fenham, Newcastle-Upon Tyne NE4 5NT; £2 each

<+> It's been mentioned in Hate, now buy the real thing! Unskinny. A semi-autobiographic comic and ranting magazine, reading like Deadline crossed with Jo Brand and Evan Dorkin — with a dash of serious fantasy for good measure. The short, one-page jokes are funnier than the longer sequences, but Unskinny is a funny comic. And she doesn't hate all men, only some of them. But if the word tampon offends your delicate sensibilities, this probably isn't for you. (RJJ) 8

Zum! 8

by Paul Schroder, Flat 1A, 113 Singleton Rd, Salford 7; £1.75

The first printed issue of the small press reviews 'zine packs around 200 substantial reviews and loads of illustrations into 50 pages and is a pleasure to read. Anyone reading this review shouldn't be without Zum — and since I'm no longer editing it you can take that as an impartial judgement! (MK) 8

Anybody wishing to contribute to Reviews should write to the editorial address given on page 3 this issue for a style sheet.

MOVERS & SHAKERS

The latest news, views and rumours in our ever-popular independent look at the hits, misses, prices, projects and people making comics news. Reported by the ever mysterious and controversial team of investigative diggers and delvers known to the world only as ITMA.

Morrison at Marvel

DESPITE most people thinking that Grant Morrison and Mark Millar are dyed-in-the-wool Vertigo writers, both of them grew up with a great love for superheroes.

Grant, currently enjoying critical success with his series The Invisibles, and Mark, revamping Vertigo's longest serving title, Swamp Thing, approached Marvel a few months ago and were offered a number of projects.

Grant said of their new work for Marvel, "Karen Berger and Stuart Moore [DC editors] were a little surprised by this but the truth of the matter is that we didn't really read that many horror comics when we were lads. We read superheroes. In fact, just about all we read these days are superheroes too."

Morrison and Millar's first project for Marvel will be an new ongoing monthly book called Skrull Kill Krew, which, the writers promise, "Is going to be the most extreme Marvel Universe book anyone's ever seen before."

The new title digs deep into Marvel's past, as far back as Fantastic Four #2. In the second ever Marvel superhero comic, the newly formed Fantastic Four battled the alien shape-shifting menace of the Skrulls and only managed to overcome the threat by tricking the aliens into becoming cows.

John Byrne returned to the theme in Fantastic Four Annual #17. But it's Morrison and Millar who are giving the idea a far more nefarious twist, looking at the effects and consequences of people eating contaminated beef, the result of years of breeding of the Skrull cows.

The series will be illustrated by Morrison's partner on both Zenith and The Invisibles, Steve Yeowell and top inker Terry Austin, with cover art by Greg Capullo — doing his first work for Marvel in over a year.

Character designs for the series have been produced by Reboot's Brendan McCarthy.

Skrull Kill Krew (which Grant wanted to call Kree Kill Krew when he realised how popular the initials would be in the deep South) is scheduled for a May release and after that Grant and Mark will be getting their hands on a more conventional Marvel superhero. Both writers are working on separate Spider-Man projects and also have a "very hush-hush" maxi-series scheduled for early 1996.

It's X, Jim. But not as we know it!

TO some X-Men fans, the withdrawal of Jim Lee from The X-Men was far more catastrophic than Chris Claremont's departure. It was also viewed by some to be more acrimonious, despite assurances from both Bob Harras and Jim Lee that they were still good friends.

Lee is currently on a sabbatical, spending time at home with his wife and children, while his partner Brandon Choi runs Wildstorm Productions. But sitting around idly has not been easy for Lee, so it was not surprising when he announced that he would be returning to comics in the autumn.

Then the rumours started to circulate: Jim Lee was returning to draw The X-Men!

But before all you X-fans x-plode in x-tasy, be aware that it will be for a three-issue X-Men/WildC.A.T.s crossover.

With the X-Men riding a sales high and WildC.A.T.s having slipped — regardless of who is drawing it, this would seem to be the perfect deal for Jim Lee. Not only does he reap huge benefits from doing a guaranteed top-selling comic, yet again, but it kickstarts his return to WildC.A.T.s.

Barb watch

READERS who also tune into ITV on Saturday evenings to see New BayWatch will be delighted to discover that Pamela Sue Anderson has been signed up by Dark Horse Comics to play Barb Wire in a new feature film.

Anderson, more famous for her tits than her talent, is said to be receiving a substantial fee for the movie, which will also feature characters from the new Dark Horse Heroes line.

File under X

THERE is a scoldingly hot X book out there at the moment and hardly a mutant in sight.

X-Files #1 from Topps Comics has proved to be the fastest mover in the back issue boxes for months and a long-deserved success for the trading card giants.

As recently as the January Westminster mart, the comic — which was released at the beginning of this year — was selling for five times its cover price.

One dealer had a copy on his wall for £5. It was snapped up within minutes. He put a second copy up for £10. It sold just as fast. He hung on to the rest.

The print run on the comic, which features the continuing adventures of FBI agents Fox "Spooky" Mulder and Dana Scully, is believed to be in the region of 50,000 and with the series back on US TV and taking the Nielsen ratings by storm, interest in this title may well continue to grow.

Hopefully not (what is now known as) an Image promise, Topps have announced that they will not do a second printing of this hot title.

his future on the X-books. "There will be some major changes in the creative team for X-Force, some effective after AlterX, some effective immediately.

"Gambit and the X-Ternals #4 [the temporarily retitled X-Force] will be the last issue of this title that I write. My editor, as is his right, has decided to "go in a different direction" with the book, so X-Force #44, shipping in May, will be written by Jeph (Cable) Loeb.

"Of course I don't like this decision, but I also don't like humility and I can't do much about that either!

"Tony Daniel will be leaving the title after Gambit and the X-Ternals #2. He was offered work by Todd McFarlane which he considered more appealing to him. Salvador LaRocca will be pencilling Gambit #3 and #4.

"It is not known who the regular penciller will be for X-Force #44. It is also believed that inker Kevin Conrad will be leaving too to work with his friend Greg Capullo."

Nicieza continued "Pretty much a clean sweep, huh? Hey, if that McFarlane rat keeps stealing X-Force talent, how come he never asks ME to do anything with him? Hmmm... that question might be better left unanswered, my poor little ego is bruised enough as it is!"

Fabian also categorically denied any "rift" between him and editor Bob Harras and stated that he would continue to write X-Men and has a Two-Gun Kid project due.

Image to Marvel: Half-price Sale?

TIM Sale, the artist on Image's Deathblow, is off, leaving the book to draw a mini-series for the X-Men family of titles.

Sale first came to prominence for his rather distorted but popular rendition of the Challengers of the Unknown in the eight-issue mini-series in 1991, and he is believed to be teaming up with his Challs cohort, Jeph Loeb, for a Wolverine/Gambit four-issue mini, scheduled for the late summer.

With Image willing to thrust a blank cheque under the nose of any potentially hot artist at Marvel, it is encouraging that Sale has left Image to work on a project for the rival publisher (although it can be said that a Wolverine/Gambit series is likely to sell substantially more copies than Deathblow!).

Wonder Byrne

JOHN Byrne's history of revamping long-established superheroes is almost as prolific as Jack Kirby's comics creations and his latest project is Wonder Woman.

Byrne is to take over the Amazon warrior after the present team of Bill Messner-Loebs and Mike Deodato Jr leave with issue 100.

Wonder Woman's last major revamp was shortly after Crisis on Infinite Earths, where she died, only to be recreated under the guidance of George Perez.

Perez returned her to her mythical roots and the series received great critical acclaim but suffered from a perennial Wonder Woman problem — poor sales.

Messner-Loebs and Deodato have proven to be so successful on the book that it has recently surged into distributors top 100 charts and some retailers and comic watchers think that issue 100 may well break into distributors' top 50s.

So for once Byrne is not coming onto a book that is in dire need of revitalising, this time he is set to replace arguably the most successful Wonder Woman creative team of recent years.

DC might see Byrne as an ideal replacement for the departing creators but, given the disappointing results of his recent Danger Unlimited title, does he still have the mass market appeal to keep the book as financially successful as it is at the moment?

Hot oddities

WHILE the recent back issue market continues to splutter, there is some hope on the horizon for the hard-pressed back issue dealer.

● Cable 20 is an unofficial crossover in the Legion Quest storyline which laid the foundations for the current After Xavier series. Some retailers have found that they are selling the issue for up to £5, a real bonus for a series which has constantly failed to repay the retailers faith in it.

● Strangers in Paradise issue 1 has been bombarded with praise from all corners of the industry and the first appearance of Terry Moore's characters had an estimated print run of 5,000!

Retailers who have had copies are selling them for £10 and upwards.

● Mark Waid's recent run (ahem) on The Flash has helped restore the Scarlet Speedster to a fan favourite position, but with the exception of certain cheaper mail order outlets, hardly a dealer in the country can keep the title in stock.

Coupled with Waid's innovative writing of Flash is the success of artists Mike Wieringo, Carlos Pacheco and Salvador LaRocca, all of who have gone on to become some this year's "hot" artists.

● The current success of the "bad girls" in comics has sparked a mini-revival in some areas for Seventies super-heroines: Ms Marvel has already come in for some moderate speculation in recent years thanks to its links with The X-Men (Chris Claremont wrote both titles and introduced Carol Danvers into X-continuity after Ms Marvel was cancelled).

Issue #16 is of particular note as it features the first appearance of former villainess and Nightcrawler's mother, Mystique. Former villainess? She is due to become a full-time member of X-Factor.

● The same interest has been generating for Chris Claremont issues of Spider-Woman, especially as he tied his run on the title into X-Men continuity as well. He introduced Banshee's daughter Siryn (now of X-Force) in #34.

● Wonder Woman's first series is becoming popular again, despite some pretty whacky stories. Silver Age issues are selling for a premium again (especially the later bondage covers) but it is #300 which is rapidly rising in price and not because of Diana Prince.

This issue features the first appearance of Lyta Hall, the woman who had the son of Morpheus, Vertigo's very own Sandman and indications are that The Sandman's son, Daniel is to replace him as Lord of the Dreaming.

Crossover crazy

Last month we stated that DC and Marvel had announced new projects by Walt Simonson and John Byrne on Jack Kirby's Fourth World characters.

Actually, Byrne broke the news of his Darkseid/Galactus crossover in his own Next Men title and Simonson has since issued a rebuttal to his announcement of the New Gods project, saying that all correspondence about the project be directed at DC.

While both creators had told the world, the publishers hadn't. So, with things constantly in a state of flux (which borders on the states of Alaska and Paranoia) we can't say these are sanctioned.

But we have now heard of a number of other crossovers (apart from the previously mentioned Jim Lee project) that are in the pipeline but haven't been announced by the paymasters...

● Spider-Man/Batman: J. M. DeMatteis, Mark Bagley and Mark Farmer are likely to be the creative team on the Marvel version (should there be one). No creative team has been linked to a DC version (should there be one), although the Azrael team of Dennis O'Neill and Barry Kitson look favourites.

● Shi/Glory by Billy Tucci, Rob Liefeld, Jo Duffy and Mike Deodato: This proposed crossover (should there be one) could be fit in with the rumour that Tucci is taking his growing success story Shi: The Way of the Warrior to Image.

● Ultraforce/Avengers by Bob Harras, George Perez and Gerard Jones is now very likely after Marvel's acquisition of Malibu. The key figures in the proposed story are the Black Knight and Serse, both former Avengers who were banished to a strange dimension (possibly the Malibu Ultraverse) as Black Knight is scheduled to guest in Ultraforce #8. In a unique plot twist, Warren Ellis is due to take over the writing of the title from issue 16.

● And the most requested fanboy favourite for the last four years... Spider-Man/Spawn by Todd McFarlane (should there be one, really, should there?).

Apparently, since the changes in editorial direction at Marvel, Bob Budiansky, the Spider-Man family group editor, has been talking to Todd about the possibility of a cross-company team up for the two.

More Marvel projects

ALTHOUGH not officially announced, Marvel is believed to have a number of new projects in the works, including the reintroduction of one of its most popular western heroes.

● Two-Gun Kid is a two-issue mini written by Fabian Nicieza and is planned for a summer launch.

● The long-awaited sequel to the 1986 Longshot mini is finally scheduled to appear this year. Believed to be written by creator Ann Nocenti, this new series of the dimensionally displaced X-Man unfortunately will not be drawn by original series artist Arthur Adams.

IS COMIC COLLECTING GETTING YOU DOWN?

ARTWORK © & ™ FRANK MILLER 1994

Do you find you're constantly missing out on "hot" books or even regular issues of your favourite titles? Do you find yourself having to pay over the odds for the first issues of titles like Gen[13], Vengeance of Vampirella, Shi: Way of the Warrior, Generation X or Lady Death? Are you constantly searching for those missing crossover issues like Cable #16, Showcase 94 #7 & 8, Avengers West Coast #101 or Green Lantern #46 and, when you find them, having to pay a premium?

Are you fed up with having no choice other than titles from the obvious mainstream publishers like Marvel, DC, Dark Horse, Image, etc? Do you want something more than super-heroes?

If you've answered "yes" to any of these questions, you're buying your comics from the wrong shop! You need to get yourself along to THE EDGE OF FOREVER without delay.

By using our in-house computer in conjunction with our specially designed software, our expert and experienced staff (with over 20 years in the business) have made sure that all our standing order customers have seen all the first and crossover issues that may be of interest to them... even if they haven't been ordered! 1995 promises to be an interesting year. I got off to a great start with two trips to France in the first month (Courcheval 1850 for the skiing, Angouleme for the comics convention). Rumours abound: about distribution changes, publishers seeking refinancing, hirings, firings, brave new ventures and false starts. And as always, we'll be here to cover them.

I see that you are taking my advice and keeping up the good work. Congratulations on your fiftieth issue and a glossy cover too! Here's to your next fifty.

Issue 50 brought some sad news for me: the cancellation of Bob Overstreet's Gold and Silver Update. This is serious bad news as I only have issues 4 and 5 and I need to get 1 to 3 and have yet to see issue 6.

This magazine was my pride and joy. I just quietly loved it and didn't make my feelings known. I didn't take out a subscription — yes, I know all the doubts from past experience and yet they still cancel it.

I tell you, it's a conspiracy and I'm very near to giving in (I won't, of course). Over the years everything I have read and enjoyed has been dropped. It's enough to give you an inferiority complex.

Why does it happen? People write in and praise something to the heavens and everything seems to be hunky dory (haven't heard that saying for a long time, thank God!) and then the axeman cometh.

When I say everything, I mean almost everything. The one exception is Comics International, the cheapest and best read to be had.

I've got a feeling I shouldn't have said that...

Believe it or not, neither a price rise nor cancellation is imminent. I've personally lasted at this one longer than anything else in my life... except school. While I have been suffering from creative urges (comics-wise) increasingly of late — after five years reporting on others — the formula of Comics International appears so popular that it looks set to run and run.

TWO things: First, why is it that in your Comics Economics section you frequently list all the Image titles that failed to make the top fifty and only some (a few) of those from other companies? Would it be useful to calculate the percentage of titles a company releases which make the top 50?

Second, Peter David (in Major Digressions, Comics International #50) seems to have forgotten Fritz Lieber's version of temporal change as shown in his Spiders and Snakes stories when he mentioned established time travel theories, i.e. you can change time, but it'll tend to snap back to its original form.

Lieber gave it a name, "The Law of Conservation of Reality" and it made for some interesting tales. I bring this up as it appears that this is the kind of time that operates in comic books as any reading of the aftermath of big change storylines like Crisis tend to show.

When Comics Economics first began to extensively analyse the chart performances of the leading comics publishers, Image was so dominant that if a title failed to make the top fifty it was considered (by retailers, fans, etc) as being a flop.

It was also the stance of Comics Economics in its overview to point out interesting titles which failed to chart, from any publisher.

Over the last twelve months, Image has steadily been failing to chart with up to 60% of their product at times, showing that only a percentage of the Image creators have the "pulling power" to sustain chart performance.

I think your magazine's great, but I have noticed a gradual slip towards apathy and depression.

Like the guy in the Hula Hoops ad on TV who says "Lighten up, son. It's supposed to be fun."

So many negative views knocking this, rubbishing that. There's good and bad in anything and that's always been the case, it's not a new problem, so let's have more cheerier views.

I like the idea of Desert Island Comics but would have liked to see it open to everyone; creators and fans, even dealers and comic shop workers, who must have a greater amount of material to read than anybody else.

I'd also like to see more on favourite characters that have been dropped or forgotten by today's creators, such as Jugger Grimrod of the Alien Legion or a "whatever happened to so and so?" regular column.

I also read that Stateside Comics has folded. I'd ordered a few items from them only to have most of my choices "out of stock".

But these same items were still available in their most recent catalogue (in Comics International #48) a few months later. Can we have the full story on these events please?

On lightening up: I've made the same observations in print. We attempt to remain objective about events, whatever our personal views. This way, we provide an unbiased forum for people to express their views, whether in our Reviews, Comment or Letters sections. We favour positive opinions but can only print what we receive. Any negative feedback about the industry comes from the comic buyers, not us.

On Stateside: yes, the old company did close. The assets were bought by an investor, who has financed the new Stateside, with hardly any break in continuity, outside of the franchised outlets disappearing in favour of a more focused operation. We gave a fuller run-down on the changes in issue 48.

On "out of stock" items: I would imagine restocks were acquired from new collections bought in, as happens all the time. Dez

I'M impressed with your new NETworks column — it's almost encouraging me to think about upgrading my PC with the necessary to start trawling the "information super-highway". (Why do I always think of Jack Kirby's Forever People when I hear that phrase? Or maybe it's the Newsboy Legion and their Whiz wagon?)

Marvel's split into five different families ("Hey, we're gonna make you an offer you can't refuse!" — no, not that sort of family...) seems almost as if the Marvel Universe is no longer a single entity. Is the After Xavier storyline really only a trial to seperate the X-Men titles totally from the rest of the Marvel operation? Hasn't it been noted in the past that if the X-Men titles were a seperate comic book company they would still be in the top three publishers?

Excalibur or Cable to get the chop? My money's on Excalibur — it's lost all direction and really doesn't fit in (if it ever did) with the rest of the mutant mayhem (have I been reading Stan's Soapbox columns again?). So, we'll probably be seeing Ex-Cable as a new title...

Finally, I look forward to your promised "...overview of the early days of (UK) fandom..." — will the title be "When Titans Clash"?

NETworks: Be warned, we print the good stuff. Remember the old Theodore Sturgeon adage that 95% of SF (or everything, for that matter) is rubbish? Well, the Internet is cluttered with CB radio style diatribes, so the good stuff's not easy to find. It's main appeal seems to be to frustrated letter column writers and is very personal. Not rubbish necessarily, but you'll need to wear your anorak for most of it. Dez

What prompted me to write is a conversation I had with Colin Campbell. As you are aware, DC's Judge Dredd titles (and Tank Girl) will not be available from March in this country for "copyright reasons".

Colin made the point that it reminded him about the old ND (non-distributed) days of the '70s and '80s, but questioned what the ND could now stand for, as most imports are readily available.

Without thinking (much!), I replied "No Dredd", and we both fell about laughing. Thought you might like to share with it.

ARE there any other followers of Doctor Strange appalled by his new image, revealed in issue 75?

How can Marvel destroy the visage of the good doctor so easily? Reducing the sorceror supreme to a bespectacled hippie, who dares to don the master's cloak of levitation?

I would urge people to write to Marvel and to myself so that we might coordinate and campaign for the restoration of the Master of Mystic Arts.

Coincidentally, we have just heard from Warren Ellis that Doctor Strange is to be an all-Brit book. Warren is taking over scripting with issue 80, while Mark Buckingham will continuing to illustrate the series.

A fan of the original take on the character, Warren promises to restore the Doctor's former greatness.

AS an AC/DC fan, I was delighted to see that Marvel was to do a comic about the band. When my local retailer told me about it, I immediately asked him to order it for me. But then I asked him who the creative team was for the comic. He said that Marvel didn't know. I was confused. How can Marvel solicit a comic without knowing who is writing it and who is drawing it? More importantly, how does a retailer order this book and would it be regarded as a returnable item?

One last point, after reading Diamond Previews' Marvel section, I also noticed that there was a Rolling Stones: Voodoo Lounge comic. This comic was priced $6.95 for 48 pages as opposed to $5.95 for 48 pages for all the other Marvel Music launches. The only reasons I can see for this is that the Rolling Stones are the most famous of all the music stars featured and Dave McKean was about the only high profile artist involved with all of the projects.

Is Dave McKean really worth a dollar more?

Marvel appears to be releasing its entire comics music line in the same month, with nothing scheduled to follow. Presumably, nobody was lined to actually produce the AC/DC title, and Marvel didn't want it to miss the mass-launch.

As Marvel doesn't say who will draw it, it won't be a change of creator whoever does, so it isn't likely to be returnable for retailers.

RETAILERS:
Are you getting enough?

Despite Comics International being the third best selling title in most comics shops, reports are constantly being received that it sells out weeks before the next issue is due.

Remember, Comics International is not a sales catalogue, it is not supported by major interests and is not produced purely to promote comics sales. But it does help readers sort the wheat from the chaff, which helps you, the retailer, when ordering new titles.

Think of it as an informed sales aid and use it. When Comics International gives a title high ratings, watch the sales rocket.

At a time when major publishers can't find space in their comics to promote their own titles, and nobody is willing to criticise the leaders, you need an independent voice; you need Comics International.

We gave away over 50,000 copies to launch the title, and we still offer sale or return terms on orders over 50 copies. You've nothing to lose and a lot to gain. Phone our shipping department to increase your order. It works for advertisers, now make it work for you!

Dear Fellow Comics Fans, Science Fiction affecionados,
Action/Horror Buffs, Trekkers, Terminators, Jedi,
Muscles from Brussels Enthusiasts & Bagginses,
Welcome to our Spring Surprise

WELCOME TO THE WAREHOUSE SPRING SURPRISE: and Doubly welcome are you as readers of Comics International.

We also have a few more welcomes to offer before getting to the dish of the day.

WELCOME: to everyone who felt that little frisson of fright when reading about werewolves & vampires for the first time.

WELCOME: to all of you who hid behind the couch when Dr Who battled the monsters.

WELCOME: to everyone who lived the Forever War, ran amuck on Pyrrus, rode with the Dragon Riders, visited The Dead Lady of Clown Town and rode the stars with Luke, Han & Leia.

WELCOME: to everyone who suddenly (or even gradually) found the incredible excitement that resides within the pages of four colour comic books.

WELCOME ONE AND ALL: to the latest humungus, incredible, monumental, colossal offering from The Comics Warehouse, our mammoth sixteen page Spring Surprise.

Yes, sixteen pages this month! It could take you a week to just read our advertisement, let alone the rest of the magazine. Does Dez give value for money with Comics International at a mere 50p, you bet he does, and so do we here at The Comics Warehouse.

Over the past few months we've had a super-abundance of stock dropped on us. Publishers overstocks, retail overstocks, remainders, stores going out of business, and consignment goods. We estimate that we have pushing, if not in excess of, a million comic books and related items sitting here for your enjoyment.

So we've put together our sixteen page Spring Surprise advert, just for you.

Within the next sixteen pages you'll find a veritable fountain of entertainment, colourful heros, galactic villains, action, adventure, girls, guys, lascivious enjoyment, more girls, (don't get carried away now (phew!) along with tales of the environment, crime, horror and visitors from every way station between here and Betelguese and beyond. The Comics & Magazines that we've listed are both our regular stocks, the additional numbers added to it and quantities that we've accumulated in numbers usually too small to include in our ads.

It may be a little premature to welcome you to Spring, but let's look forward to blossom on the trees, the lifting of winter and the sunshine of four colour comics. Our 16 page Spring Surprise advert is listed by Publisher with the final two pages offering a whole range of softcover books and "prestige" format comics.

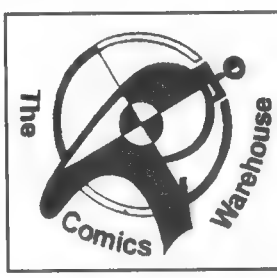
We've sprinkled the entire page count with cover illustrations. These covers are all from Comics and books that are in stock and available for you to purchase, but instead of taking the traditional route, we've shown cover illustrations of mostly independent publishers and softcover books that you might not normally see. We hope you enjoy both the text and the illustrative display.

One of the most interesting things about comic books is the sheer diversity of subject matter. From cartoon & kidvid to insightful psychological analysis, from action / adventure to talking heads, the range of subjects covered is as wide as the human imagination. You'll find literally something for everyone within these pages, so we'll look forward to orders from all of you. An anticipatory thank you folks ... The Comics Warehouse is here to serve you, with the best possible product at the best possible price. It is our job to bring excellent reading material to you, and we enjoy doing so.

We now have thousands of satisfied customers, who keep on coming back to the table of delight for second, third, fourth, and twenty-eighth helpings, its great. They become our friends, enjoy our service and philosophy of service which is simple. We enjoy what we do. So keep those orders coming, keep on reading the books and keep on enjoying yourselves.

I guess its time for me to wind up this little discourse before I get carried away and start going on about the good the bad and the ugly in comics, I leave it totally to you to guess where any sentiments of mine are.

Now though, its time to indulge in the delicious brain nectar of four colour copies as supplied in copious abundance by your friendly neighbourhood Comics Warehouse (and wherever in the world you reside, you are only a postage stamp or telephone call away. Looks like the global village is really here).



At the Warehouse we're looking forward to hearing from you, in the meantime, I'll initialise the sound system, crank up the volume and let the world know that the Comics Warehouse is well and truly open for your sagacious delectation. Enjoy.

Please remember that all our advertisements are completely self-contained and cannot be mixed or matched with any other advertisement or offer. The prices in this sixteen page advertisement are valid from publication until April 28th 1995 only. All prices are per copy except "set" or "pack" prices which are for single sets as advertised, and remember that when ordering "mature" titles such as "Vertigo" we must have your honest signed statement that you are in excess of sixteen years.

OK, Ladies & Gentlemen, its time to get down to the nitty gritty, the serious bit that you need to read to follow how we've laid out our table for you to feast on.

As we've already said, the last few months have seen an increase in the amount of comics offered to us.

The quantities range from single copies to tens, twenties and thirties to hundreds and, although we don't grade, (a mind blowing, labour intensive job that increases your costs tenfold and is basically unnecessary for us as we currently handle only modern product) all are up to our usual standards of which, you are probably already well aware, if not, try us and find out.

When I say that we don't grade, that's not strictly true. As we breakdown the incoming pallets and boxes of comics, we toss the dreck and mashed up copies to leave a bulk of good books for us to sell. What we don't do is split cents from pence, worry about a few books with price stickers or split out alternate covers (more on that later). Pallets of Comic Books come in every week from remainders to spanking new airfreighted imports, so our stock ranges from mint unread new books through to quality ex-newstand issues.

Prices range from the extremely cheap to almost market depending on a variety of factors such as whether they are comics we've taken on consignment or whether they are overstocks or hurts. (Hurts are over-ordered or undersold retailer stocks that have been passed to us for disposal) or whether they are new imports left over from our new comics distribution service. Even with our huge space and shelf allocation the stock has been split into several distinct yet different areas of The Warehouse. Each item is computer coded so that we know exactly where to look for it. For instance Action Comics starring Superman codes as DC1 and DC1X, Punisher codes at M181, M181T, M181V, M181W and M181A. As you wander through these pages and make your selections, please ensure that you give us the computer code that is relevant to the books you want. Thanks.

As the listing has been broadly grouped by publisher, one important sub genre of comics is spread throughout the sixteen pages, that of Manga. You'll find Manga titles all over. Sorry about that ladies and gentlemen. We'll try and group them in subsequent advertisements. Another important sub genre spread through the list is the sudden flood of "Bad Girl" comics. Strong female characters like Lady Death, Shi, Vampirella and Razor are now very popular and heavily in demand. Bad Girl / Good Girl art and stories have always been around, and most are thoroughly enjoyable although in the hard edged 1990's with its abundance of steroidal male heroes of ambivalent morality firing big guns which cause death and destruction, its easy to see that female counterparts of these characters would be created and be made, ready to be published when the time was right. Surprisingly and happily, it didn't happen. The "Bad Girl" books now being published contain their quota of vigilantes and killers, but the thrust of the books is slightly different to that of the mainstream with many of the Bad Girl books being flagged as being for mature audiences only. The themes involved can, and many times are, those of retribution and revenge, with the protagonist being scantily clad and vicious but, there are other slants being taken on the genre, from vampires to detectives. Remember though, whatever the genre, if its a Mature Book, we must have an age statement. Good Girl art on the other hand is unabashed cheese cake, innocent and enjoyable.

Earlier, I said that we'd get into the allegedly vexed question of Alternate Covers, now is the time. A year of so back, Image Comics decided to "reward" fans/readers by producing alternate covers (at a ratio of one in four) on some books. These alternate covers became immediate collectibles and escalated in price horrendously. The Comics Warehouse does not subscribe to that alternate cover pricing. The books cost us the same, whatever the cover, so we sell them for the same price as we sell regular covers. What we will not do is accept orders that specify alternate covers. The books are in our pick bins and every fourth order processed gets an alternative cover pick. Its down to the Luck of the Draw. As you purchase the comic to read, it really doesn't matter whether it has 20 different covers or not (oh dear I think that I have just given a nameless publisher yet another crass marketing idea). By the way, have you noticed that some Image books had a different advert on the back page, at a ratio of 1 in 4.

In the initial introduction, dear fellow fan, I made some oblique references to comic, science fiction / fantasy and movie TV themes. Any of you who can suss out where all the references came from (and let me know by letter) will receive a small token of appreciation from me for your diligence and knowledge. Many thanks.

In the interest of fairness, impartiality and efficiency, there are a number of guidelines that we would like you to observe when ordering, so that we can process your requirements with maximum speed and minimum hassle.

Before we get to the specific rules though, I would just like to take time out to say thank you for supporting The Comics Warehouse in our mission to bring good inexpensive reading to everyone.

Hopefully, this will be the first of many such larger listings to be put out on a semi regular basis.

Back at the dawn of history (around 1990/1991) DC began to theme their summer annuals sometimes using individual giant size story bookends, at the beginning of the run to introduce the concept and at the end of the annuals publishing season to close the story. In 1994

The Alternity Saga a ZEN Graphic Novel

the Annuals theme was Elseworlds stories, in 1993 The Bloodlines saga, 1992 saw Eclipso almost shadow the globe and 1991 was Armageddon 2001. Armageddon took the concept of a Rogue Hero dominating the world a few year in the future then going back in time to ensure that his will prevailed. The time travelling aspects of the storyline were quite well done and the series also spawned two four issue mini series called Alien Agenda and Armageddon Inferno: all of which leads us into offering you a good read in:

DC ZERO HOUR

The 1994 shake up of the entire DC Universe right across all the alternate realities and all time lines. Completely terminating many heroes and creating others: the crisis in Time Mini Series brought the disparate story lines together in a holocaust of ectropic forces created by one hero turned renegade. Subsequent Zero issues form a re-affirmation of the hero and a re-alignment for the 90's of their origin stories.

Vertigo is a relatively new imprint at DC. The imprint was formed to publish contemporary and horror fiction using complex themes particularly suited for a more thoughtful and discerning audience.
Along with not so standard horror fiction Vertigo explores relationships, alienation, social structure, confused sexual identity, and freudian and jungean archetypes side by side with entertaining fantasy and adventure stories.
If you have the impression that Vertigo is a recommended range of books, you are absolutely right. We start the section with a strange one:
DC39: AMERICAN FREAK: Remember ARCANE and the UN-MEN from Swamp Thing, both contemporary and all the way back to Wein & Wrightson issues. American Freak is a nineties vision of a young man born of Un-Man.
We're offering issue one at a Special Introductory Price of just 30p, followed by issues 2 to 5 at the usual 60p. At 30p for issue one, give experimental reading a try.

MARVEL SELECT

After the incredible success of the fully painted "Marvels" mini series by Busiek & Ross, Marvel, recognising a marketing opportunity initiated the "Select" programme: using the same quality paper and protective acetate covers, only this time square bound instead of stitched Marvel commissioned new silver age type stories painted in the Marvels style. The result was entertaining stories with a hard 90's type edge to them. Marvel put them out at $6.95 which in our opinion was a tad overpriced, so although we brought them in as new books and paid market rate, we now offer them to you here at very reader friendly prices.

When the X Men we re-launched as a new title in 1991, issue one was shipped with 4 variant covers that when put together made one landscape picture: the variants were released at weekly intervals (with exactly the same story content) and on the fifth week a deluxe edition with a full illustrative fold out cover of the combined variant cover images was shipped; therefore you have a single story in issue one of the X-Men with no less than 5 different covers. The marketing hyperbole surrounding this event was so intense that no less than seven million copies were printed. Unless someone somewhere has an XMen 1 waste paper drive, this book will always be available. It is not a book we look for but whenever we do get it in you'll find it from us around 30p with the deluxe around £1.00. Happy Reading.

OTHER PUBLISHERS

Publishers outside the mainstream that we have bits of stock for have been placed into this section. Companies like Bongo, Caliber, Fantagraphics, Entity, the new face Techno, Harris, Gladstone and so on, far too many to list as individual publishers. Some are one hit wonders others are mega wannabes. The books here are listed in more or less alphabetical order (you may nit pick over some of our alpha designations, but well, its a filing system. It works for us, and the computer only does what its told, after all).

As many of the books published by independent and self publishers are primarily designed for the author/artists own contemporaries, age bracket, and/or peer group, the books are usually flagged as being for a mature audience or specifically state "not for children". As with all the mature titles we offer, an honest age statement is mandatory. So here we go, its on with the show: there should be something for everyone here, from Vampirella to Uncle Scrooge, from Bone to James O'Barr. Enjoy yourself:

MARVEL UK

A couple of years ago there was a valiant but short lived experiment to put the United Kingdom offices of Marvel on the map in the USA as an editorial and creative force. A whole sub genre of superheroes were created, the art & stories originated in the UK, were solicited and published in the USA. After a small initial success, the programme dissolved and was cancelled a year later. Some of these comic books have now reached us, (not very many as print runs were low) which we are happy to pass on to you at just 40p each, (with the exception: that of Deaths Head II gold) so on with the M.U.K. show:
MU2: BATTLETIDE 1,4.....£0.40
MU4: BATTLEAXE 3-7.....£0.40

DEFIANT

Jim Shooter launched Defiant in response to a perceived market gap. Last year the company ran out of money and folded. Jim is back in business again at Broadway Comics, but here we offer you the opportunity to own a small piece of Comic Book History with a short and cheap Defiant Comics Listing:
DF5: DARK DOMINION 1-8.....£0.40
DF7: GOOD GUYS 1-7.....£0.40
DF8: DOGS OF WAR 1-2.....£0.40
DF10: WAR DANCER 1-4.....£0.50
When War Dancer came out there was an enormous outcry because in the closing panels of issue one, the artist, Alan Weiss, graphically depicted a boy and his dog being blown apart by the hero, entrails & all.
DF12: WARRIORS OF PLASM: 2,4-10.....£0.40
Err... any more... no that's it, Jim didn't get much published before it all fell apart.

Graphic Novels, prestige editions, soft cover collections, new books, mando format, the descriptions and definitions of publishers when trying to describe different types of comic related books are both legendary and confusing: What we've done in this section is to offer you "book shelf style" books and "prestige format" comic strip series. All are soft cover with square bindings, the prestige format items are high profile comic books, usually with all new stories. The soft cover book shelf books range from fairly slim $3-95 and $4.95 items to massive 300 page tome like "Concrete".

The vast majority of these books are from the USA and for your guidance as to their relative values we have included the publishers $ dollar price as given on the book. On some of them a UK price has also been printed, where that has occurred we have printed the UK published price as well. The final £ sterling price given is the Comics Warehouse own selling price to you. The listing is split by publishers Marvel, DC, Dark Horse, Valiant and others, others being a hodge podge of different books. These books make ideal gifts and also offer a readable and elegant alternative to the search for elusive and sometimes expensive back issues to find those "key" or popular stories, but don't get me wrong though, these books are not all reprints, many of them contain brand new stories that are well worth reading.....

So, without (too much) further ado we present the

This advertisement is valid from publication until April 28th 1995 only, stock permitting. We are now running out of space with thousands of comics still to list. Not only that we haven't touched cards, toys or posters this time around. So order today and keep watching the skies, sorry carried away again, I mean keep watching your post box. Take care.

VALIANT

Valiant Comics became hot favourites as new kids on the block a couple or three years ago with an epic called "The Unity Saga", putting them right into the popularity spotlight. Comic Book Retail Agreement

CoBRA

Mail Order Protection Scheme

With the increasing audience for buying comics by post, reputable organisations risk suffering because of any unsatisfactory mail order transaction new readers of this magazine may have had elsewhere.

To reassure readers, Comics International has instigated a Mail Order Code of Practice, with participating businesses displaying the above logo in their advertisements, lists and catalogues.

CoBRA Mail Order Protection Scheme Code of Practice

Advertisers:

i Advertisers will state in print their standard despatch period for published goods, which will be within 28 days of receipt of payment.

ii In the event of items having sold out, customers will be offered a full cash refund for these goods.

iii In the event that goods are received by purchaser in unsatisfactory condition due to bad grading or poor wrapping, vendor agrees to provide acceptable replacement copies or full refund including the return postage costs incurred by purchaser.

iv Where required, an independent panel will judge whether goods in question are below advertised standards of grading.

v Where a PO Box address and trading name (other than limited company or PLC) is used by advertiser, the true name or business name (as appropriate) of the advertiser together with full address and telephone number must be submitted to Comics International with advertising copy, or the advertisement will not be accepted.

vi Vendor vouches that all goods detailed in advertisements, lists and catalogues which carry the CoBRA MOPS seal are graded as accurately as possible and no defect is intentionally overlooked.

vii Any mail order organisation subsequently failing, under investigation, to abide by this code understands upon joining that its name will be published as no longer connected with the CoBRA Mail Order Code of Practice scheme.

CUSTOMERS:

i In the event that goods ordered and paid for are not received within the advertiser's published fulfilment period, customer will notify advertiser in writing that goods have not been received and that unless a satisfactory response in writing is forthcoming, they will pursue their claim through CoBRA within 7 days.

ii It is recommended that mail order buyers should always retain dated copies of all correspondence and payment records, in the event of any query, and that customers contacting the CoBRA MOPS (Mail Order Protection Scheme) send additional copies of any relevant correspondence with their letters.

iii Customers are reminded that a standard of 28 days fulfilment is the accepted norm to allow for any outside delays in the mail routing of customers letter, together with banking time for clearance of payment and/or delays in transit for goods supplied. Collectively, these factors can add 15 days to fulfilment time.

iv Customers are also reminded that many mail order businesses do not have sufficient staff to allow for fulfilment of orders during vacations or stock-purchasing visits overseas, but vendors should notify customers of such occasions.

v When paying for a list or catalogue, customers are reminded that a delay may occur when vendor is either preparing a new list or catalogue, or when current one is considered too dated to be of benefit to would-be purchaser. Vendor guarantees that new list or catalogue will be sent upon completion, which will be within 2 months of advertisement being published.

vi CoBRA cannot adjudicate over well-protected goods damaged by postal authorities, but a claim can be made by both vendor and purchaser against the assigned carrier.

Mail Order Retailers: If you agree to abide by the above conditions and wish to add a CoBRA MOPS symbol to your advertisements and catalogues, please submit your trading name and address with full name, personal address and telephone number of your business's proprietor with a first year annual subscription fee of £5.00 to cover administration costs (made payable to Comics International, CoBRA account) to:
